Fifteen Nations Sign Treaty to Outlaw War

War Renounced As Instrument of National Policy and All Peoples of World Invited to Join Effort for Permanent Universal Peace—Secretary Kellogg Second to Sign Pact.

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Kellogg-Briand renunciation of war treaty was signed this afternoon by the plenipotentiaries of 15 nations.

Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister, was the first to sign the document, attaching his signature at 3:45 p. m., (9:45 a. m., Eastern Standard time).

Secretary Kellogg was the second to sign the treaty and Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia affixed the fifteenth and final signature at 3:55 p. m.

By the pact the fifteen countries renounced war "as an instrument of national policy."

With its signing all the peoples of the world were invited to join in a great effort to achieve permanent universal peace, Soviet Russia being asked to take part through the French government.

Alphabetical Rule Applied.

Significantly, Dr. Stresemann, the first German foreign minister officially received in Paris since the war of 1870, was the first to sign under the French alphabetical rule applied to the names of the signatory countries. The United States was considered as being called America in order to make Secretary Kellogg the second signer.

Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium was third and Foreign Minister Briand, whose message to the American people through the Associated Press many months ago was the origin of the pact which Kellogg developed and expanded, came fourth.

When Briand had finished an address of welcome and the pact had been read, both were translated into English. This took 43 minutes and then the French foreign minister, after a burst of applause, rose and invited Dr. Stresemann to sign the instrument.

Stresemann Uses Kellogg's Pen.

Stresemann rose straight to his full height. He was quite pale, but walked with firm step around the big table to the inside of the horseshoe and seated himself at a small table where the treaty with all the seals affixed was lying. He wrote his signature quickly with Secretary Kellogg's pen dipped in the inkstand which served for the signing of the first Franco-American treaty negotiated by Benjamin Franklin.

The German foreign minister blinked in the brilliant lights that shone upon his face. When he had signed, he rose amid more applause and returned to his seat. Then at Briand's nod, Secretary Kellogg went to the treaty table and signed. The others followed in a steady procession.

Order in Which Others Signed.

After Foreign Minister Hymans had signed for Belgium and Briand for France, Lord Cuchendun, acting British Secretary of State for foreign affairs, signed in behalf of the kingdom of Great Britain. He followed by Premier Mackenzie King of Canada; Alexander Maclachlin, member of the Executive Council for the Commonwealth of Australia; Sir Christopher Parr, New Zealand High Commissioner, for New Zeland; Jacobus Smut, South African High Commissioner, for South Africa; and President Cosgrave, for the Irish Free State. Lord Cushendun then signed again for India. Count Manzoni signed for Italy, Count Uchida for Japan, Foreign Minister Zaleski for Poland, and Foreign Minister Benes for Czecho-Slovakia.

Impressive Scene Photographed.

Brilliant calcium lights cast a ghastly glare on the scene as motion picture cameras ground and cameras clicked. There were rushes of photographers to get their plates out to waiting messengers who sped by motorcycle to the aid fields to carry the plates to Berlin, London and other European capitals.

Within a few minutes after the treaty was signed telegraphic messages were sent to American diplomatic representatives all over the world to present to 47 states invitations to adhere to the pact. Twenty-four of these were sent from the Paris embassy and 23 were to be sent from the State Department at Washington.

The formal invitations had previously been mailed and telegraphed to all the points affected so that they might have the document ready when word was wired that the treaty was signed.

Bail Increased to $35,000.

Vincent Francis Tallerico of Peekskill being held in the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie charged with rape and assault in the second degree on Miss Marie E. Conroy, alleged to have been committed on the night of August 8, will have to furnish $35,000 bail instead of $10,000 first set, if he wishes to get out of jail. The motion to increase the bail was made by District Attorney Gellert after a physician stated that Miss Conroy's condition showed signs of getting worse.

Second Arrest For Subway Crash

Indications Are That Someone Else Will Be Arrested in Connection With Times Square Fatality—Death List Increased by One.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—A second arrest appeared probable today in the investigation of the Times Square subway wreck which caused 16 deaths and one indirectly.

District Attorney Joab Banton summoned several witnesses to his office today for questioning.

"This inquiry will be pushed right through," he said, "to a definite conclusion. We have three weeks until September 17, when William Baldwin, the maintenance man charged with homicide, will receive a hearing in court."

It was Col. William C. Lancaster, chief engineer of the transit commission, who indicated the second arrest would be made.

"There were two cases, not one, of man failure," said Col. Lancaster. "The maintenance man, Baldwin, and his helper, Carr, should have spiked the switch. They had plenty of time and tools to do it. But the human element failed there."

In the second place he said, someone operated the valve that threw open the switch as the ninth car of the subway train was passing over it, causing the wreck.

Hysteria caused by seeing the wreck victims brought on a heart attack that proved fatal last night to Mrs. Jennie Lockridge, 56, former dramatic and vaudeville actress.

Of the 91 injured, 21 were till in hospitals today. Fourteen were reported in a serious condition.

Hoover Mapping Campaign Plans

May Visit New York and New England—Will be Unable to Accept All Invitations Sent to Him.

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP).—Refreshed after a two days' rest at his home here, Herbert Hoover today turned his attention to mapping out his program for the remainder of the campaign.

The Republican presidential nominee decided to give first attention to the east. In order to inform himself fully as to the situation there he has invited a number of friends to call on him at his new headquarters which is to be set up here.

He now has under consideration a visit to both New York, the home state of his Democratic opponent, and Massachusetts, but his eastern itinerary will not be decided on until after he has conferred fully with those in charge of his campaign in that section.

A number of invitations to speak in the east already have reached Hoover, but he probably will be unable to accept all of them. One suggestion is that he deliver an address on Labor Day, expanding on his views regarding labor contained in his acceptance address. A decision on this will be reached within the next day or two.

The Republican candidate's own view is that he should defer further speech-making for two weeks or more and then begin an intensive drive which would carry him into the border states and the south as well as the east. He also probably will make a trip to Chicago before beginning his final swing across the continent at the close of the campaign.

Curtis to Speak at Syracuse Tuesday

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27 (AP).—Senator Curtis, the Republican Vice Presidential nominee, set out today on his second speaking trip of the campaign, heading for New York and Pennsylvania.

At Syracuse, New York, tomorrow, the Senator will speak at the State Fair. Speaking under the auspices of the American Farm Bureau he will discuss the agricultural situation in the home state of Governor Smith, the Democratic Presidential nominee.

On his return to the capital, Curtis will go by Harrisburg, Pa., where he has been invited by the National Grange to talk at a picnic of Pennsylvania farmers on Thursday. Again the farm situation will probably be discussed in this appearance.

Next week Curtis will go into New England, with addresses planned for Massachusetts and Maine.

Farm Bureau Picnic Postponed to Friday

Owing to the poor traveling conditions caused by the recent flood and forecast rainy weather the annual Farm and Home Bureau-Chamber of Commerce picnic has been postponed from Tuesday, August 28, to Friday, August 31.

The postponement of the picnic, which will be held at Forsyth Park, Kingston, will have no effect in detracting from the program. The various committees promise that all the events will go on as scheduled. The refreshment committee will be on hand with plenty of good things to eat.

A cordial invitation is extended all to attend the Farm and Home Bureau-Chamber of Commerce picnic, where city folks and those of the outlying county communities may renew acquaintances.

Wall of Water Rushed Through Rondout Valley

Cloudburst Menaced Lives and Property Over Area 20 Miles Long and Seven Miles Wide—Seven Villages Marooned—Motorist Drowned in Flood—Bridges Washed Away.

Ellenville, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—A cloudburst at the headwaters of Rondout Creek, on which this village is located, yesterday sent a wall of water racing through the valley toward the Hudson river, flooding half a dozen villages and menacing lives and property over an area 20 miles long and seven miles wide.

Two men were drowned and 17 other persons were reported missing throughout the Rondout valley as police and county officials today began checking up on the damage caused by the flood.

Motorist Drowned at Napanoch.

Charles Lavery, 50, of Paterson, N. J., drowned on the main state highway near the Napanoch State Institute for Mental Defectives when the flood waters swept across the highway, stalling his motor.

Lavery and a companion, Joseph Hughes, also of Paterson stepped from the car into the water. Hughes reached firm ground, but Lavery plunged into a hole and drowned despite the efforts of Chief Guard Wager and five men from the institute to rescue him.

Philip Blatt, who lived near the Napanoch institute, drowned when he attempted to carry his wife out of their flooded home and stumbled on the threshold.

Boys Marooned in Trees at Rosendale.

Twenty-seven boys, from six to 15 years old, members of the junior naval militia at Brooklyn, were marooned all night in their camp on an island in the Rondout Creek, at Rosendale. The swollen waters swept over the island, forcing the boys and their guardians, Captain and Mrs. Harry R. Zeiner, to take to trees and the roof of the mess hall.

After several futile attempts at rescue the boys were taken off in boats early today and removed to a farmhouse on higher ground by Kingston police, deputy sheriffs and State Troopers.

Throughout the entire valley, bridges were destroyed, the largest being an all-steel structure on the main highway at Napanoch, the flooring of which usually is 20 feet above the surface of the creek.

Villages Marooned by Flood.

The villages of Ellenville, Grahamsville, Napanoch, Eureka, Lackawack, Montela and Rosendale were marooned. Although the crest of the flood had passed the upper portion of the valley, the water was rising at the rate of two feet an hour at Rosendale early today, with the main street already under six feet of water. Communication with that village was cut off, telephone lines being down and highways largely washed out.

At Wawarsing, the tracks of the Ontario and Western railway were washed out.

Lackawack Casino and Cottages Destroyed.

At the Lackawack Country Club, a casino and nine cottages were destroyed by the flood, and about 300 guests were marooned on a higher part of the property. They were rescued during the night. The damage at the Country Club was said to have been caused by the bursting of a private dam on the club's property when the water behind it became swollen by the cloudburst.

The Napanoch Institute was without lights, owing to damage to the power plant of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company, at Honk Falls. No commotion among the 1,200 inmates of the institute was reported.

Motorists May Have Suffered.

While no definite information as to possible loss of life could be obtained, reports coming out of the stricken area indicated that motorists passing through the valley may have suffered. Three persons were reported drowned at Accord when they attempted to ford Mombaccus Creek in an automobile. The main highway between Kingston and Ellenville was several feet under water, and the trio attempted to drive through the creek, which is ordinarily fordable at that point.

Kingston police early today received a report that two motorists had drowned at Kerhonkson, a few miles east of Napanoch, when the

Rondout Creek Current Halts Trips of Ferry

Tug Rob Also Compelled to Berth at Dock at Foot of Broadway—All Craft Tightly Moored in Response to Warning—Flood Conditions at Eddyville and Greenkill Park.

With a twelve knot current running in the Rondout creek this morning the ferry Transport was forced to suspend all trips until the current subsided. An attempt was also made by the tug Rob to run in the ferry's place, but owing to the strength of the current the tug ran as far as Ponckhockie and then turned around and ran back up the creek, berthing at the Cornell Steamboat Company dock at the foot of Broadway.

It was at 6:30 o'clock this morning that the ferry Transport left her slip expecting to run down the creek as far as the coal pockets and coal up before beginning her regular operating schedule. The current proved so strong, however, that the ferry was unable to make the coal dock landing safely and continued on down the creek, crossing over the Hudson river to Rhinecliff, where she remained in her slip until word is received from this city that the current in the creek had subsided.

Over Docks in Places.

The heavy downpour of rain during Sunday caused the Rondout creek to go on a rampage, and at 10 o'clock this morning many of the docks along the creek, that were low, were under water, with the water gradually rising.

Boats Fastened Tightly.

At 5 o'clock word was received by the boating interests along the Rondout creek that the guard lock at Eddyville was in a dangerous condition and liable to let loose at any minute.

The warning led to the boating interests getting out forces of men and seeing to it that all craft in the lower creek were safely moored and in no danger of breaking loose from their moorings to be carried out of the creek by the heavy current.

Eddyville Shut Off From City.

Flood conditions prevailed at Eddyville and all traffic was forced to go around by way of the Rosendale road as the Eddyville road between Schumann's Hotel at Eddyville and the Vly was under water fully six feet in depth.

Greenkill Park Road Flooded.

Greenkill Park was also shut off from Kingstaon by a wall of water said to be fully fifteen feet in depth that covered the road where it turns off from Eddyville and leads into the park.

The hotel and houses at Greenkill Park, however, are on high ground and in no danger from the flood.

Those staying at Greenkill Park were forced to use the back road leading into the Rosendale-Kingston road if they desired to leave.

Eddyville Cellars Flooded.

At Schumann's Hotel it was stated that there was four feet of water in the hotel cellar. All the houses along the canal also had that amount of water in the cellars.

Boys Watching the Lock.

All morning several boys were stationed near the guard lock at Eddyville to give warning in case it gave way. If the lock did give way under the pressure of water it would greatly aggravate flood conditions not only in Eddyville but in the lower Rondout creek.

LEVINE UNDECIDED ON FLIGHT TO AMERICA

London, Aug. 27 (AP).—Charles A. Levine, who flew to London from Dessau, Germany, stated today that he was still undecided whether to attempt a flight to America.

His decision will depend on "conditions and circumstances," he said, especially on how his new Junkers monoplane performs in the trials he is putting it through at the Croydon airdrome. He expected to spend the whole day at Croydon testing the machine.

"I'll take Miss Boll if the trial flights show we can carry her," Levine said in response to a query as to whether Mabel Boll, the "Queen of Diamonds," would accompany him in case he made the trip.

Fayolle, Marshal of France, Dies.

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—Marie Emile Fayolle, marshal of France and one of the great French soldiers that the World War produced, died this morning.

Ashokan Basin Filled to Brim

Water Running Four Inches Over Flash Boards of Spillway—Shandaken Tunnel Closed Early Sunday Morning—3½ Inches of Rain Fell.

The Ashokan reservoir, due to the heavy rainfall of Saturday and Sunday, is filled to the brim, and the Shandaken tunnel was closed early Sunday morning as soon as the Esopus creek began rising. Five and one-half inches of rain fell in the Ashokan region on Saturday and Sunday.

This morning water was running over the flash boards of the spillway to a heighth of four inches. With the Shandaken tunnel shut off the rainfall of Saturday and Sunday added four billion gallons of water to the Ashokan reservoir.

Very little rain fell at Prattsville, probably about half an inch, and the water in the Gilboa reservoir was raised only about two feet and is still sixteen feet from the top of the dam.

So far this month there has been a rainfall of 11 7-10 inches in the Ashokan reservoir section. During June of this year the rainfall was 12 2-10.

There has been a rainfall so far this year of 48 inches which is equal to the general yearly average in other years.

Roads Washed Out In Sullivan Co.

Livingston Manor, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—The cloudburst which flooded the entire valley of Rondout creek yesterday was accompanied by torrential rains in this section of the western slope of the Catskill watershed.

In this village a number of streets were under water, while roads were washed out in places. Dozens of automobiles were stalled by the water. No lives were reported lost and property damage was said to be slight.

The villages of Liberty, Neversink Thompsonville were practically marooned by water from a number of creeks and small rivers which overflowed their banks. The water did not reach a sufficient depth to cause much damage other than to crops.

Several bridges in the vicinity of Liberty were damaged, but none were carried away. Washouts on highways and damaged bridges caused long detours in motor traffic, but communication by road was maintained.

Strong Current But No Flood

Flood conditions that prevailed along the upper reaches of the Rondout creek did not raise the waters in the lower creek to flood heights, but created a strong current that ran with twelve knot speed causing the ferry Transport to tie up at Rhinecliff until the current had subsided.

In some places along the dock front of the lower Rondout creek the water flowed in over the docks. This, however, was only where the docks were low. At the Cornell Line dock at the foot of Broadway the water was about two feet below the dock level at high tide at noon. The water was not expected to rise any higher.

City Reservoirs Are Overflowing

The Kingston reservoirs are filled to the brim and overflowing, it was stated today. At Zena the water from the reservoirs is over the road in some places, but there has been no damage reported.

Cooper's Lake is also filled to the brim.

A steady rain fell all day Sunday in the vicinity of Reservoirs Nos. 1 and 4, but there was no cloudburst such as reported in other sections of Ulster county.

At the Zena plant of the Kingston water works system it was stated that conditions were only a "little above normal."

Tannery Brook Over Its Banks

The heavy rainfall of Saturday and Sunday caused the Tannery Brook to overflow its banks for its entire length from Golden Hill to the Esopus creek.

Sunday the residence of the late Herbert Carl on Linderman avenue was flooded by the waters of the brook which entered the cellar, rising as high as the furnace. The garage on the property was also flooded by the rising waters.

Rondout Valley Flooded, Two Deaths Reported

New Jersey Tourist Drowned at Napanoch While Trying to Escape From Rising Flood — Husband Drowned Saving Wife—Means of Communication Disrupted and Other Fatalities May Have Occurred—Boys' Camp at Rosendale Inundated and Rescuers Have Hard Time to Save Twenty-five Campers.

The cloudburst of Sunday which carried death and destruction in its wake, centered at the head waters of the Rondout creek at Eureka and Sundown. At least two lives were lost as a result of the storm. Charles Lavery of Paterson, N. J., was drowned on the state road near Napanoch, and Philip Blatt, who lives near the Napanoch institution, was drowned when he attempted to carry his wife from their flooded home.

It is said that the cloudburst, which caused the upper Rondout creek to burst from its banks, carried out a number of comparatively small dams, which added to the amount of water in the upper reaches of the creek, adding to the flood conditions that prevailed from Eureka to High Falls. Below High Falls the usual flood conditions prevailed but no bridges were carried away.

The Lackawack Valley is very narrow from the point atop the Napanoch hill to Eureka, a distance of about 10 miles, where the ground on both sides of the creek is comparatively level. This section may well be compared to a bottle with the neck of the bottle at Honk Falls.

Waters Backed Up.

When the raging waters sweeping down reached Honk Falls the outlet was so narrow that it caused the waters to become dammed and backing up they began to inundate the surrounding territory between Eureka and Napanoch.

From reports received today the major part of the damage caused by the flood centered in the vicinity of Napanoch which is situated near the foot of Honk Falls. It was in the vicinity of Napanoch that all bridges were swept away by the onrushing waters.

At this time it is impossible to accurately estimate the amount of damage caused by the flood or to ascertain the number of lives lost.

Boys Marooned All Night

Marooned all night in the swirling waters of the Rondout at flood stage, twenty-five boys ranging in age from 6 to 12 years together with Captain Harry R. Zeiner, his wife and son and a colored chef were rescued at day-break this morning at Camp Henry through the combined efforts of State Troopers, Sheriff Rice, employes of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company, the Kingston fire department and several volunteers including Father Francis M. O'Reilly of Rosendale. The lads in the custody of Captain Zeiner and his wife were members of the Second Division, New York Junior Naval Militia of New York city, who were in camp at Pleasure Island in the Rondout creek just down stream from the village of Rosendale.

For hours rescuers had been at work attempting to aid the stranded youths and their instructors while the muddy waters of the Rondout creek rose foot by foot until they reached flood stage and engulfed the camp where the boys were.

Flood Outdistanced Rescue Work

The water began to rise at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening and plans were made to take the lads to safety. The camp was equipped with boats and preparations were made to make off in the boats. The water rose with such rapidity that before the boys could be gathered together the current was running like a mill-race.

At the camp were four boats and Captain Zeiner prepared to get the boys off as soon as it was learned there was danger of the camp being flooded. While preparations were being made to abandon camp one of the boats which had been tied up at the camp broke loose and was swept down stream. In the boat were the oars for the remaining boats and without oars the boats were useless in a current which by that time was carrying everything moveable before it.

Current Carries Buildings Away

The water continued to rise very rapidly and the youths took refuge in the camp buildings. The water closed in over the buildings until they were flooded and shortly afterward the youths had abandoned the buildings for more secure quarters, the buildings were swept down the creek. The only building which remained was the mess hall, a building about 18 feet square. Standing on tables the lads watched the water creep higher and higher. As the water came up the current increased until it became evident that the island would be swept clean. The lads were then placed in the available boats and the boats were moored to the mess hall.

Discovered Boys' Plight by Accident.

It was about this time that the plight of the boys was discovered. Sergeant James J. Cunningham, Trooper Whitney and Sheriff Rice had started out to go to Ellenville from where a call for assistance had come. Believing that the road through Marbletown was flooded they took a route through Rosendale. Arriving at the old canal at the edge of the village, they discovered water flowing through the streets and covering the state highway. Water was up to the Ziegler gasoline station and the bungalows at the rear were flooded.

Stopping to take in the situation, cries of help were heard from the direction of the boys' camp which is perhaps 500 feet below the highway along the old canal tow-path. The officers made an investigation and found the boys marooned on their island camp about 150 feet from the tow-path. Between the boys and the tow-path was a muddy swirling stream which was rising rapidly.

Kingston Fire Department Responds.

Word was sent to the Kingston fire department and in short order Chief Murphy was on the scene with a hook and ladder.

Half Drowned in Rescue Attempt.

An attempt to reach the boys by carrying a line was abandoned when Harold Bovee of Maple Hill, after a heroic attempt to swim the distance, was hauled from the water in a half drowned condition. Bovee battled with the swift current for some distance but when the swift water off shore caught him the attempt was abandoned. The current was so swift that it was hard work later to keep a boat from being swamped.

Rescuers Finally Reach Shore.

Father Francis M. O'Reilly was on the scene in short order and with Sergeant James Cunningham and Ed Cristman made the first attempt to reach the stranded boys. Two attempts were made and in both attempts the rescuers were beaten back by the water which by that time had reached a considerable depth and was carrying along with it all kinds of small outbuildings. A third attempt was made and after battling with the current for several minutes while the fate of the boat was held in suspense the three men finally conquered and reached the shore line which was then only marked by a fringe of trees.

Line Made Fast, Rescue Begins.

The rescuers found the lads all in the boats which were moored to the mess hall. While Father O'Reilly and Sergeant Cunningham held on the boats, which were tugging at their moorings, Mr. Cristman took two of the lads in the boat, and when the line which the boat had carried over was made fast to a tree he started back to shore with the two lads.

For several feet he battled with the current, attempting to keep hold of the line, but the water tugged and wrestled with the boat until he was compelled to let go the line. Seizing his oars he rowed madly toward shore while the current carried the boat down stream. Below the current increased and not far distant was a fall over which no boat could stand up. Battling with the current for a time with apparently little headway, he finally pulled the boat in toward the shore and in calmer water.

The boat was seized by willing hands and the two lads taken in charge.

Carry Steel Cable Across Stream.

Realizing the danger of another trip even though the water remained the same, it was decided to abandon the rescue until a more satisfactory means could be secured. The members of the repair gang of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation responded and work of running a steel cable was commenced. A second line was carried across the stream.

Search Lights Aid Rescuers.

With the scene lighted with huge flood lights the work of rescue was carried on.

By the time Cristman returned to the island the water had gradually risen until it was apparent the mess hall would go out.

Trooper and Priest Reach Boys.

Realizing the danger Sergeant Cunningham and Father O'Reilly, who had been encouraging the lads and keeping them quieted, made a dash for a more sheltered place some

OUR BUSINESS MEN ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN.

Local Products For South America

With the recovery of the business depression that pervaded the country during June and a part of July, the Universal Road Machinery Company of this city is now busily engaged in filling orders for various types of machinery throughout the world.

Recent shipments in crushers include complete plants, consisting of 10x15 and 9x16 sizes to the Beach Manufacturing Co. of Charlotte, Mich.; an 8x14 to A. E. Lucas of Newburgh, and a 10x15 to Bogota, South America. The latter order, received through the Universal's agent at Columbia, S. A., makes six plants now in operation in that vicinity.

The town of Plattekill in this county purchased last week a new portable 12x21 crusher for their needs.

Bay City gas shovels were sold and delivered to the townships of Unionville and Wappingers Falls in Dutchess county. The last two shovels make ten sold in this immediate vicinity in the past six months.

Brockway motor trucks were sold to the townships of Red Hook and Milan in Dutchess county and one to the town of Plattekill in this county.

A Brockway fire pumper and also a Brockway chemical engine were sold on Wednesday night to the town of Livingston, Columbia county.

The water board of the city of Kingston recently bought of the local company a 220 foot Ingersoll-Rand compressor for use on the new pipe line near Cooper's Lake and another compressor of the same size was sold to C. T. Wilkinson of Buffalo, who has the contract for a new road for the state at Taconic Park, Columbia county.

Orders are on file for November delivery for four Walter Snow lighters in counties adjacent to Ulster.

HARRY HARP WRITES ABOUT CONDITIONS IN COLORADO.

New Paltz, Aug. 27.—The following interesting letter has been received from Harry V. Harp from Colorado Springs, Colorado, and will be of interest to his many out of town friends, he having taught school in Kerhonkson last year. He writes:

I find this an exceedingly interesting country, so much so that I wonder why so many Americans go abroad each summer; and many among them never having seen the wonders of our own country. Today, August 11, a friend and myself attended the Pikes Peak Air Circus. We arrived at the Air Post around one o'clock and found it jammed with cars and spectators.

There were 21 United States Army planes from our four governmental fields. Their planes were painted blue and trimmed with yellow. The army fliers surely were great and made a big hit. It certainly is wonderful the way our army boys handle these machines. One thing that particularly interested me was when three planes which really looked like hawks and flying very close together, made a nose down at the rate of 200 miles an hour and then suddenly spurted up and climbed over 1,000 feet straight up. This exhibition was concluded by a live parachute drop and some thrilling acrobatics.

These stunts consisted of loops, spins, barrel rolls, side slips and more nose dives which brought the crowd to its feet at the great chances the fliers were taking. After this performance we inspected at close range all the various types of planes, and the pilots and mechanics explained the different models, which was most interesting.

From the crowd's point of view, probably the most amusing was the huge 14-passenger Ford, all metal plane, which I have been told cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. This plane was operated on the field by the Rapid Air Lines of Rapid City, South Dakota. It took up over 200 passengers yesterday, at a cost of $5 per person. I did not go up in this plane as only last week I had the thrill of taking an air trip over Pike's Peak which I shall never forget.

Tonight fliers from Wyoming staged an air raid. An illuminated ship coasted over the city of Colorado Springs and shot high powered rockets into the air. Finally the plane went into action, dropping bombs over the Air Port where no harm could be done. The manner in which the ship changed colors was very impressive. At one time it burst into red flame, creating the impression it was on fire. The entire performance was put on by fliers who took actual part in aerial fighting in the great World War.

If one cares to make an educational trip while in this beautiful part of the country he should visit the Cliff Dwellings at Manitow. These ruins are a strange and beautiful sight, sheltered by cliffs of beautiful coloring and in a setting of fragrant pines. Every rock used in more than 100 rooms of these ruins was hewn into shape by the aboriginal Americans. In one of the chambers is a famous collection of Cliff Dwellers' pottery, mummies, implements and other relics. Here one sees also their kitchen utensils and their corn raised centuries ago. Near these dwellings has been constructed an Indian dwelling consisting of two spacious rooms. One of the rooms is used for a store where genuine Indian curios are on exhibition and some may be purchased, while the other room is inhabited by an Indian family who entertained us with a buffalo dance. Wish you could have seen them attired in buffalo skins and other Indian paraphernalia. The bead work, blanket weaving and pottery making of this Indian family was indeed very interesting.

Courteous guides explained everything in detail, making this one of the most pleasant trips I have ever taken. While at Colorado Springs one should certainly visit the Cave of the Winds. It took us over a half hour to visit the 16 beautifully electric lighted rooms which proved of great interest. This cave has a greater variety of formation than any other cave in the world, and truthfully speaking, I fail to find adjectives to describe it.

What would you say if I told you I enjoyed a snow ball fight last week? Think of it—in August! It took place on the top of Pike's Peak, where the thermometer registered 30 degrees. I have also visited the famous gold mines at Cripple Creek, where a considerable amount of this precious metal comes from. The mine that we inspected was 1,300 feet underground. Guides explained numerous things. So you see I have been quite near to heaven and the other place; but still prefer to live for a while longer.

One of the most pleasing incidents of my stay at Colorado Springs was to run across a girl from my home town, Miss Helena Gerow of New Paltz, who had just returned from a visit to Yellowstone National Park in company with another teacher from Leonia, N. J. With best wishes to all my New Paltz friends.

Western Europe Heavily Armed On Eve of Treaty

All Nations Except Germany More Heavily Armed Than in 1913—Each Country Fears Its Neighbor Although Prevailing Mood Is Longing for Peace.

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—Consummation of the Kellogg-Briand war renunciation treaty finds Western Europe with the exception of Germany more heavily armed than in 1913.

Upwards of 3,000,000 men are in actual military service and, as it happens at this season, many hundreds of thousands have been called to the colors for training. Swift practice mobilizations are in progress and trial war maneuvers are under way throughout Europe.

In artillery, in stores of munitions, in chemicals and in works for making gases, in aircraft, in tanks, in all the complicated apparatus of destruction, the nations have a striking power immensely superior to that of 1913.

This is especially true of the powers large and small lately allied in the war. The central powers are disarmed under peace treaty limitations, but the victorious and non-combatant powers, excluding Serbia and Russia, have added to their armaments of 1913.

How Nations are Armed.

Great Britain and Ireland, which just prior to the war had 496,000 men under arms, now have troops totaling 408,000; France, whose troops before the war numbered 646,000, has added 20,000 to this figure; Italy, whose 1913 army consisted of 274,000 men, now has 347,000 men under arms; Belgium has increased its army from 47,000 to 79,000 and Greece from 25,000 to 66,000. Rumania has an army of 205,000, compared with 103,000 maintained there before the war.

States non-combatant in the great war have felt impelled to add to their military establishments. Switzerland, Holland, Spain, Sweden have larger armies.

Distrust Is Wide-Spread.

Why these armaments?

The comprehensive reply is the wide-spread distrust, suspicion, fear that pervade the councils of governments. Peace engagements of much formality have been adopted by European powers at Genoa in 1922, at Geneva in 1924, at Locarno in 1925, and now, the most solemn of all perhaps, the Briand-Kellogg Convention of 1928. The distrust of the present is an inheritance of the past.

Each country has its specific reasons adequate to itself even if unexpressed or not much talked about. There are the Italo-Jugo Slav differences. Rumania has her Bessarabian question. Poland, with 242,000 men under arms, has her doubts of Russia; her fears of Germany on account of the Danzig corridor; her open dispute with Lithuania. The "Little Entente"—Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Rumania—have their contentions with Hungary over the minority question.

France Explains Heavy Armament.

The armaments of France, easily the most powerful country on the continent, require some explanation, the French feel. Prevailing thought in the higher political level is that France, more than any other power, is responsible for peace in Europe, that is to say, for the maintenance of the status quo. Beside that, it is felt here that the engagements of France are such that there can hardly be a war anywhere in Europe without affecting French interests. She has military alliances with Belgium and Poland. France also has limited alliances with Rumania and one or two other Balkan states.

There is the delicate Italo-French situation. Almost anything that one might say on this subject would be controverted by a competent authority in Rome or in Paris. Nevertheless, a situation does exist that gives some concern on this side of the frontier.

The figures for the Italian army, although not counting the 49,000 in the Colonial garrisons, might be considered as including 28,000 armed customs and frontier guards. The reserve Fascists, highly organized and spirited, number 250,000.

Prevailing Mood for Peace.

The prevailing mood throughout Europe seems to be a universal longing for peace and security and yet the sad feeling that both means must be used—eagerness for new mutual peace pledges and armaments up to the limit of financial possibilities.

WEINER HOSE TO HAVE PICNIC AND DANCE.

A picnic and dance will be held by Weiner Hose Company, No. 6, at Maple Hill Inn on Sunday, September 2. Dancing will be in order from 2 to 11 p. m. The committee in charge of the picnic and dance promise that the event will be up to the standard of like affairs sponsored by the hose company. The way in which picnics were enjoyed by those who visited Maple Hill Inn as guests of the firemen last year indicates there will be a large turnout at the coming event.

Brickyard Landslide.

Several hundred tons of clay, loosed by the heavy rains, caused a landslide at the Greenport Brickyard Co., north of Hudson, Thursday. Henry Bogue of Hudson was caught by the slide, which injured his legs slightly. The amount of clay that slid from the bank completely covered a steamshovel.

Clambake at Esopus.

The annual clambake of the Esopus M. E. Church will be held on Wednesday evening, August 29. Tickets on sale at S. E. Mott's grocery store, also at the Tu-Bal tea room at Esopus.

$25,000 Prize for Best "Dry" Plan

Durant, Motor Car Manufacturer, Offers That Sum for Best and Most Practicable Plan to Make 18th Amendment Effective.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—A prize of $25,000 today is offered by W. C. Durant, motor car manufacturer and capitalist, for the "best and most practicable plan to make the Eighteenth amendment effective."

The plan must not be over 2,000 typewritten words in length. The competition closes December 1, the winner to be selected by a committee of prominent men and women who are yet to be named.

Mr. Durant, who is abroad, made known his offer in a cable to his office here.

"The major issue of our country today is the problem of law enforcement and obedience to law," said his statement. "To paraphrase the words of Lincoln it is a question whether our institutions can endure with a citizenship half lawless and half lawabiding.

"We are imperilled by the widespread violation of the liquor law embodied in the Eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, the highest law of the land.

"Big business leaders who have the largest stake in law observance publicly and privately violate this law and countenance its violation by others. Instead of using their wealth and influence to create public opinion demanding law enforcement, our business men of character and position are the chief support of the master criminal class, the bootlegger.

"It is not surprising that the flagrant example of lawlessness on the part of the men highest in their communities has undermined respect for law in their children, their servants, their employes and all classes of citizens, including public officials and judges.

"When thinking men generally come to realize that the responsibility is up to them to take the initiative in law observance, then, and not until then, will the Eighteenth amendment be given a fair trial. Until that time there should be no thought of writing this provision out of the constitution."

He said he believed the majority of the people in the United States did not want the amendment abandoned and that he was offering the prize to "give expression to the soundest thought in the country on the subject."

The plans are to be submitted to the prize committee on Eighteenth amendment, Room 2401, Fisk Building, New York City.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Aug. 27. (State Department of Agriculture and Markets).—Heavier arrivals of up-state and western lettuce caused a price slump this morning in a dull and weaker market. Trading was rather slow. The quality of the lettuce, however, in general was considerably better than for the past few weeks. Sales on state big Boston lettuce were consummated at 50c@$2.50 per crate, mainly $1.50@$2. Colorado and California iceberg brought $4@$5 per crate, principally $4.50.

Fancy tender string beans of all kinds were scarce and eagerly sought. Values strengthened. The highest price obtained for the best green flat beans from up-state New York was $4 per bushel basket. Green round reached $3.75; wax $3.50 and red cranberry $2.75.

Little activity prevailed on the market for celery. Supplies were moderate but buying was light. Golden self-blanching in the rough from different sections of the state peddled out at $1.50@$3 per two-thirds crate.

Western New York carrots were in more liberal supply. The price trend was downward in a weaker market. Unwashed muckland carrots wholesaled at $1.25@$1.50 per bushel basket. Washed stock realized $2@$2.25.

Receipts of onions from upstate New York were moderate. The tone of the market was firmer with prices higher. Hundred-pound bags of yellow sets changed hands in large quantities at $3.40@$3.50.

Arrivals of state cucumbers were moderate. The market was without any noticeable change with trading fair. The best offerings jobbed out at $1@$1.25 per bushel basket. Poorer sold at 50c@75c. Dills and pickles sold more freely and prices averaged a trifle higher. Dills realized $1.50@$2.50 and pickles, $2.25@$3.

Supplies of tomatoes were liberal. The demand was limited and the market ruled sluggish, with prices declining. Western New York carriers of six four-quart baskets sold at $1@$1.50 and twelve-quart baskets at 50c@60c. Hudson valley carriers brought $1@$2.50 and baskets, 50c@$1.

VAN SLYKE & HORTON EMPLOYES' DUCK DINNER.

Employes of the G. W. Van Slyke & Horton cigar factory enjoyed a duck dinner and dance at Golden Rule Inn over the week end, sponsored by the Service Club of the firm. Although the weather was very disagreeable owing to the heavy rain, it had no effect in dampening the party. Previous to the dinner and dance, games were played in the spacious pavilion at the inn, which afforded much entertainment. The 50-yard dash, three-legged race and tug of war were among the pastimes. After relishing the delicious duck dinner served at Golden Rule Inn, the Van Slyke & Horton workers enjoyed dancing from 2 until 5 p. m.

Smith to Confer On Speaking Trip

Returning to New York for Conferences After Having Spent Quiet Week End in New Jersey—To Attend State Fair Thursday.

Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 27 (AP).—Refreshed after a round of activities that have kept him occupied almost continuously since his notification, Governor Smith ends his week-end rest at this seacoast resort today to turn again to the more serious phases of his campaign for the presidency.

With members of his family, who have been enjoying the social functions and swimming while he received state political leaders and friends here, the Democratic presidential nominee intends to return by automobile late in the day to New York for further conferences of his speaking itinerary.

A different route was mapped out for the party's return trip. On the way down they travelled through Jersey City, Newark, Elizabeth and the coast resorts between the latter city and Spring Lake. Going back the nominee is to be taken by a route farther inland by way of Freehold.

Arriving in New York, he expects to resume conferences he began there Thursday night and Friday and probably will arrive at some conclusion as to how far he will go and the approximate number of speeches he will make during the campaign.

On Wednesday and Thursday he will attend the annual "farmers' dinner" given by Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post-Standard, and the next day he will go to the State Fair. No political speeches are planned at either affair, but at the latter he may make a brief talk on state matters.

The nominee put in his last day at Spring Lake taking things easy.

Crowds at Cathedral Sunday.

First he went to church with Mrs. Smith, and large numbers of persons who had missed seeing him owing to the great crowds which turned out for the political rally at Sea Girt Saturday were turned away from the Cathedral when they tried to squeeze their way in.

Later the governor took a plunge in the pool of the Bathing and Tennis Club near his hotel and then drove to deal for a round of golf with William F. Kenny and James J. Riordan of New York and Mayor Hague of Jersey City. With his wife he dined with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Noxon at Monmouth Beach.

Sitting on the veranda of the new Monmouth Hotel he talked good naturedly for a few moments, but revealed nothing definite about his plans. It was indicated, however, that he probably would not leave the east for any extensive trip before the latter part of September.

Asked if he planned to attend the Democratic state convention around October first at Rochester, the nominee said he did not know, but intimated that he probably would be around that section at that time.

Police Court's Busy Session

Several arrests for public intoxication and traffic violations were made over the week end by the police department. Bernard Katzen of New York city, arrested for passing the traffic signal at the Rondout Creek Bridge, furnished $10 cash bail for his appearance in court on Thursday.

John Leahy of Stony Hollow fell on the sidewalk on Broadway while intoxicated and was first removed to the City of Kingston Hospital and later to the county jail. This morning he was sentenced to ten days in jail.

Fred Smith of Brooklyn was fined $30 for reckless driving and $5 for passing a traffic signal. He was driving up Broadway and in attempting to turn into Foxhall avenue ran up on the sidewalk in front of Scholl's meat market on the corner.

James Prudent of Port Ewen, arrested for passing a traffic signal at Broadway and Foxhall avenue, received a suspended sentence.

Fred Schmidt of New York city and Earl Jones of Lake Katrine were both arrested following a collision between their cars on Washington avenue. Both cars were taken in charge and held in place of bail for the appearance of both later in police court.

O. & W. Is Badly Hit by Floods

The New York, Ontario and Western railroad branch, between Kingston and Summitville, was badly hit by the floods. This morning the early morning train leaving Kingston got as far as Kerhonkson, and was forced to return to Kingston, making the trip by backing up and arriving here about noon.

The train due in Kingston shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night did not arrive, having been forced to halt at Summitville.

The regular New York train out of Kingston this morning did not leave as it was impossible to get through.

At the railroad office here it was stated that it was thought that traffic would be tied up practically all day, although work trains were now busy between Wawarsing and Ellenville, repairing the damage to the tracks.

The most damage to the trackage centered around Napanoch where from three to four hundred feet of track was washed out.

All traffic on the O & W. railroad is tied up between Kerhonkson and Ellenville.

Kingston bound trains are held at Ellenville.

Dr. Samuel Stern Caught in Flood

One Kingston resident who got caught in the flood conditions between Kingston and Napanoch was Dr. Samuel Stern, who is on the medical staff at the Institution for Mental Defectives at Napanoch. He left Kingston Sunday morning for Napanoch and had a difficult time returning to Kingston later in the day.

He reports that a dam on the Darrow farm, above the Yama Farms, broke, carrying away all of the bridges. The bridge between Napanoch and Ellenville was closed to traffic.

All along the flats from Napanoch to below Accord the water covered the road, and the current was so strong that it resembled rapids. Many cars which tried to pass through were stalled.

In front of the new school house at Kerhonkson the water was so deep that it formed a lake in front of the school which is located on the Kingston-Ellenville state road.

In returning to Kingston Dr. Stern followed the main road from Napanoch to Accord, which is all under water, turning off to the Alligerville road, which was also under water.

It took him two and a half hours to drive from Napanoch to Kingston.

Telephone Had Slight Trouble

According to the local office of the New York Telephone Company the most trouble with telephone communication centered in the vicinity of Napanoch, which is outside of the local district handled from the Kingston office, and consequently the local office was not able to give much information as to the damage to the telephone system in that district.

Sunday night, commencing at 7 o'clock, all Kingston calls for Ellenville and vicinity had to be transmitted by way of Middletown and Newburgh. Repair gangs were sent out as soon as trouble was reported and it was stated that it was expected that repairs would be completed and service resumed as usual by nightfall.

No Flood Trouble Along the U. & D.

Flood conditions did not affect the Ulster & Delaware railroad which was operating today as usual. None of the trackage was under water, although high water was reported along the Esopus creek between Kingston and Ashokan, but the water had not risen as high as the tracks.

Wallkill Valley Not Affected

The heavy floods that swept over the Rondout Valley district of Ulster county on Sunday, did not affect the Wallkill Valley Railroad which is operating on regular schedule. According to telephone inquiry the Wallkill river did not reach the flood stage.

Wall of Water In Rondout Valley

flood swept across the highway, submerging their car.

At Kingston police were warning residents at the juncture of Rondout Creek and the unused D. and H. canal to be prepared to leave their homes, should the lock between the canal and the creek give way under the increased pressure of the water.

Flood Carried Everything in Path.

The first warning dwellers in the valley had of the cloudburst was about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when police at Ellenville received a call for help from Eagle Nest, some distance nearer the head of the stream. They reported that the flood appeared to travel in waves, sweeping everything in its path.

At Ellenville the crest of the flood was reached about 6:30 o'clock last night.

The water ate away the banks of the creek for 50 yards on each side.

Napanoch Engulfed.

Napanoch was engulfed shortly after 5 p. m. The rain fell with more than tropical intensity for more than an hour.

Police and volunteers throughout the night patrolled the banks of the raging torrent, warning villagers to be prepared to leave their homes should dams at Ulster Lake and Cape Pond give way. It was reported that both structures had been weakened by the flood.

The cloudburst occurred at approximately the point from which New York city planned to draw its new water supply, utilizing the confluence of the east and west branches of the Neversink Creek and Rondout Creek.

Little Property Damage at Ellenville.

This village, taking stock as the water receded today, found no loss of life and little damage to property in the village itself.

While the surrounding farm land was submerged, and telephone and telegraph communication for the most part was cut off, Ellenville itself was untouched by the flood.

The village is situated on the junction of Sandburgh and Beerkill Creeks, the combined waters flowing into the Rondout Creek at Napanoch. To the north, between this village and Rondout Creek, highways were washed out and farm land inundated, but the flood did little damage to the south of the village.

The cloudburst, striking first at the headwaters of the Rondout gathered force as it struck Napanoch, and reached its peak at Rosendale.

No Disturbance at Napanoch.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—The New York State Correction Department today received a telephoned report from the State Institution for Mental Defectives at Napanoch in the heart of the flood-stricken section of Ulster county.

The report stated that the institution was without lights or telephone communications, poles having been shattered and wires swept away by the flood. The water supply was undamaged and no disturbance was reported among the 651 inmates.

The farm maintained by the institute was badly damaged by the flood, but the water was receding today and it was expected that the institute would soon return to normal.

Only Two Drowned.

Sheriff Arthur Rice, of Ulster county, at noon today stated that, with reports fairly complete from the entire flooded area, indications were that only two persons had drowned, Blatt and Lavery.

Honk Falls Power Station Shut Off

With the Rondout creek on a rampage the waters rose so high at Honk Falls that it swept in over the floor of the power station of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation at that place, making it necessary to shut off the water wheels that generate the electric power.

The big transmission line running from the Honk Falls power station to Kerhonkson was washed out by the floods, and it was necessary to feed both Kerhonkson and Accord from the High Falls station which was not affected by the floods.

Wallkill Not Up to Flood.

The Wallkill river is not up to flood stage, it was stated in a telephone inquiry to the Dashville hydro station of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation at Rifton. While the water is high in the Wallkill river there, it has been much higher in other years.

There were persistent rumors circulated in Kingston that the famous Perrine's Bridge had been swept out, but the bridge, which crosses the Wallkill river, is still in place and being used by traffic.

Napanoch Bridge Washed Out.

The iron bridge at Napanoch was washed out during the flood.

Phoenix-Omaha Damaged by Storm

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 27 (AP).—A severe storm last night cut a swath of destruction a mile wide through Phoenix and vicinity and caused damage estimated at $250,000.

No lives were lost although many injured, one seriously, were reported from isolated places where persons were struck by flying debris.

The greatest fury of the storm, which combined wind, rain, hail and lightning, was spent near the Phoenix high school, which was damaged.

Box cars on the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railway tracks were blown several feet and one string of cars on a transfer track were moved a block up a grade by the force of the wind. Three buildings near the downtown section were struck by lightning.

Plate glass windows were broken in many parts of the business district.

Buildings Wrecked at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 27 (AP).—A violent, twisting storm originating south of Omaha late yesterday swept through the city, injuring fourteen persons, wrecking buildings and causing damage running into the thousands of dollars before it spent its fury near the Missouri river north of the city.

Caisson Still Tilted.

The east caisson of the new Poughkeepsie bridge is still tilted toward the east and a force of 75 men are endeavoring to right the structure. The mass of steel and concrete must be sunk another 35 feet before it rests on its permanent bottom.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 27, 1928.

To the list of interesting historical commemorations has been added one of the most picturesque by Hawaii's celebration of the 150th anniversary of Captain Cook's landing. The story of Cook's adventurous voyages, from "Human Sacrifice in Otaheite" to "Burying Alive in Feejee," contains "meat" enough to turn the professional romancer green with envy.

The Chicago Crime Commission, continuing its work of ripping the criminal situation wide open, finds that 60,000 criminal complaints made to the police in the last two years have been suppressed or disguised to change their nature. Bombings have been entered on the records as "malicious mischief" and attacks on women as "accidents." Bombings indeed are "malicious mischief," in the good old sense of a word which has lost much of its force. There is a great deal of other mischief afoot in Chicago. Fortunately the decent element, which is in the majority there as in other American cities, is resuming control again.

Crossing the United States from Los Angeles to New York in two minutes less than nineteen hours is a feat not to be jeered at. Art Goebel, the California flyer who did that the other day, beat the 1923 record of the army flyers by eight hours. This flight marks real progress in aviation. The shorter time was made not so much because of a pilot's daring, but because a good pilot had a good machine with powerful motors, equipped to carry the necessary load and properly tuned to the long hard flight. Railroad trains probably never can make non-stop runs from coast-to-coast, but it will become easier and easier for airplanes to do so.

Recent enforcement items include the following: "George Winkler, deputy prohibition administrator of Indiana, during a raid on a house in Hardinburg shot and so badly injured a 16-year-old boy that his arm had to be amputated. In Chicago another dry agent, angered because a stalled car delayed his own, deliberately blackjacked the young woman driver of the stalled car, punched a jeering bystander, shot two others, and even threatened the police who locked him up. "You can't touch me," he cried "for I'm a Federal officer". Really it begins to look as if the Federal arm with a cocked gun at the end of it assumes the right of way into even the unoffending citizen's home, although his sacred "castle" under accepted law.

Richard Halliburton, writer and romantic traveler, paid 36 cents toll when he passed through the Panama Canal recently on his swim from the Atlantic to the Pacific. That fee was based on the regular tonnage charge paid by ships passing through the Gatun Locks. It was just as essential that he be elevated the 85-foot ascent from Limon Bay to Gatun Lake as it is for any great ocean liner. So up he went, with the wheels turning and tons of water filling the locks. If very many swimmers get the notion that they want to do the same stunt, Uncle Sam will have to increase his charge a little, or the Canal will cease to be a paying venture. It would take a good many 36-cent tolls to pay for working those mighty water gates just once.

CARELESSNESS IN SPEECH.

A politician is hardly expected to be as careful in speech as a college president, so there was a disposition to be tolerant when Governor Smith's mispronunciation of the "u" over the radio was followed a few nights afterward last spring by precisely the same mispronunciation on the part of President Lowell of Harvard. Governor Smith said "Constitootion" and President Lowell with equal distinctness said "stoodeat," not once only but every time he referred to the student body. It now appears that grammatical purists as well as ears sensitive to the proper sound of the "u" were alert during Mr. Hoover's radio acceptance speech. A correspondent signing herself Mrs. Easton West addresses him in the New York World as thus:

Herbert, now could you! How did you ever get by at Leland Stanford accenting "comparable" on the second syllable, "rampant" on the first, and "vagrancy" on the second, besides using "comprise" when you meant "compose", "emigrant" when you meant "immigrant", and "woman" when you meant "women"? I heard you use some plural subjects with singular verbs, and "demonstratable" when you meant "demonstrable" or "demonstrated". You seemed undecided also whether you should use Moses's pronunciation of "national", with a long first "a" or your (apparently) accustomed short "a" and finished by using them alternately.

Even if he accepts this bill of particulars as accurate, Mr. Hoover could answer that many a man has "got by" at college with less than his right to do so, and that, moreover, carelessness in speech is a widely prevalent American habit.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

THE LIVER "MIND"

I sometimes think that my readers must be of the opinion that I have the liver on the brain, because I talk about it so much; about its size, the amount of blood always coursing through it, and about the various jobs it does in the body.

However, at the Tennessee State Medical Association recently, Dr. Stewart P. Roberts of Atlanta, said, "the liver is as important as it is large (it is the largest organ in the body) and the time is at hand when we are beginning to think in terms of liver problems and to develop a liver 'mind'. The liver cell probably does more things well than any other cell in the body, and has the power when under stress, of not only stopping one or two of its jobs, but goes on with others. Twenty per cent of the total mass of the liver seems enough to carry on the ordinary amount of work it has to do. Thus if a portion of it is injured, there is enough of it left to do its various jobs."

Now you can readily see that an organ that is so large and has so many cells that it can withstand that much damage must have been placed there as a sort of guard or protection, to prevent bad food, poisons, and infections, from doing too much damage to the blood. Because Dr. Roberts points out all the serious infections, acute and chronic, and all inflammations within abdomen, must do harm to the liver.

It is because of its power to make new cells when old ones are severely damaged, and the large amount of liver tissue above that necessary for ordinary work, that enables the liver to withstand so much abuse from infections, and from our careless eating habits. It is because of its importance that so much research work has been done on the liver and this has enabled physicians and surgeons to give proper treatment, medical and surgical, and thus ensure and save life.

And remember as I've said so very many times, all the liver asks is a fair deal from you. This fair deal is a few bending exercises daily with knees straight, and the avoidance of heavy meals especially fats and pastries. Rocking from side to side with knees straight, or twisting from side to side, keeping knees straight and hips facing to the front as you do the exercise will help to squeeze the liver. I believe you can see why your family doctor and every other doctor in fact, is developing a liver "mind."

NEW YORK CENTRAL BUYS 55 LOCOMOTIVES

The New York Central Lines announced today the purchase of 55 locomotives and five additional 15,000 gallon locomotive tenders from the American Locomotive Company, at an expenditure said to be about $5,400,000.

Of these engines, thirty are of the latest design of passenger locomotive, known as the Hudson Type. 65 of which were purchased last year, and which are now being used on main line trains, such as The Twentieth Century Limited and the Southwestern Limited. Twenty-five engines are Mohawk heavy type freight engines.

These engines have been assigned as follows: New York Central—25 passenger engines; Michigan Central—5 passenger engines; Big Four—25 freight engines.

Is Your Child Ready for School?

State Health Official Advises Parents to Learn Whether He Is Physically and Mentally in Condition, Through Examination by Physician.

In getting a child ready to go back to school, don't forget to find out whether he is physically and mentally in condition for the work through a health examination made by a competent physician. This was the advice given by Dr. M. Luise Diez, associate director, Division of Maternity, Infancy and Child Hygiene in a health talk broadcast from Station WGY Friday evening under the auspices of the New York State Department of Health.

"Vacation days are almost over and school days are soon to come which means that parents are beginning to plan, and make the necessary preparations. Methods of education and in some cases selection of schools are being discussed and clothing purchased, but is sufficient thought and time being given to the physical and mental equipment of children, particularly those entering school for the first time?

"Now is the time for that complete health examination in order to detect the minor, and possibly also gross defects that so often escape attention. Have the necessary corrections attended to before school opens. For older children who possibly have had this done six months or a year ago, a check up should be made, to make sure all is well.

"Children who are suffering from physical defects are badly handicapped in acquiring an education. Remember that good eyesight and hearing are of the greatest importance in a child's educational progress; hence, the need for a thorough examination of the eyes and ears.

"Infected tonsils and the presence of adenoids expose the child to frequent colds with possible infection of nose and ears. This means at the least a loss of school time and there is always danger when ears become seriously inflamed.

"Every child should have any dental defects corrected before entering school and should have learned the established rules and practices of mouth hygiene.

"The question of posture, too, is important especially in young children who for the first time, will be expected to sit quietly for long periods. Faulty posture brings about greater fatigue and with it irritability, lack of attention and restfulness which may brand the child as difficult.

"Though most of the stress is placed on the physical side of the child it must also be remembered that there is a mental side. The child leaves the protection of the home to make its own way, in part, and frequent adjustments must be made to a new environment. This is not difficult for a child trained in good health and behavior habits. These habits include regularity of sleeping, eating, relaxation and elimination, good nature, sociability, self-control, self-reliance and self-confidence.

"Wholesome habits of personal hygiene will largely prevent infections, most of which are transmitted through contact.

"Have your child vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against diphtheria. Assure him protection, education, health habits and wisdom by advancing his mental, moral and physical well-being."

St. Peter's Sodality To Hold Outing

The annual outing of St. Peter's Children of Mary Sodality takes place on Sunday, September 9. The place this year will be Camp Wakhonda, in the Lake Katrine section, which is about 10 miles from here. This is always the grand terminus of the summer sports for the young ladies and since the expenses are so very slight, merely a small charge for the bus fare, it is expected that every single member of the sodality will go along. Young ladies not belonging to the sodality are also cordially invited to attend, so bring along your friends. The outing will be postponed until the following Sunday in the event of rain. The busses will leave from St. Peter's School at 9 a. m. promptly.

All those who intend to go along should inform one of the officers, personally, by telephone or mail. The officers are: Connie Ringwald, 620 Delaware avenue, Tel. 784-M; Anna Kraus, 500 Andrew street, Tel. 1376; Anna Laicher, 118 Hasbrouck avenue, Tel. 449-J; Mathilda Bruck, 63 Smith avenue, Tel. 2155-W, or those who wish may come to the meeting of the Bowling Club on Thursday night, in the basement of the school. Therefore, everyone must have her notification of the wish to attend reported the latest by Thursday, August 30.

During the days the girls will be able to amuse themselves in many ways at this beautiful and spacious camp. Formerly the outing was held at Camp St. Agnes, New Paltz. The change was made this year due to the kindness of the Rev. Lawrence H. Brachen of St. Vincent's Home, Brooklyn, N. Y., who so cheerfully offered the sodalists the use of his camp. The young ladies will spend the day swimming, bathing, playing baseball, tennis and basketball, besides holding some games and races for which prizes will be awarded the victorious contestants. Soda and ice cream will be taken along, otherwise each one is to supply herself with any food and beverage desired for the day.

MOMBACCUS HEIGHTS.

Mombaccus Heights, Aug. 27.—Preston Sherman and sister of New York, Mrs. Lena Trumbul and daughter of New Jersey, who have been spending a few days with relatives here, together with the Rev. A. Quick and wife were callers at the Van Etten home on Sunday afternoon. Last week they motored to Mountaindale and Cannonsville to visit relatives.

Clifford Hartelius of New York has been spending his vacation at his home here.

Friend, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith, who was burned so badly about three weeks ago, is gaining nicely at the Veterans' Hospital in Ellenville and will soon be permitted to return home.

The club members had a meeting again on Saturday night. The date of their picnic will be September 7.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnston and children of Beacon visited the Lennon family on Sunday.

Miss Mabel Churchwell has been visiting relatives in this place recently.

The Hartelius family entertained friends from Connecticut over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Quick and children of Leibhardt were callers in this place on Tuesday afternoon, August 18.

A few from this place attended the Millbook picnic and expected to attend the fair at Ellearville.

Charlie Goldbergh of New York, a former resident, spent a few days recently at the Ulstroff boarding place.

School will begin after Labor Day with Mrs. T. Nelson of Pataukunk as teacher.

Joel Lennon and sons have been picking huckleberries on the Shawangunk Mountains this season.

Miss Pearl Green, a former teacher here, has the best wishes of her friends here in her home place for her success in her new field of labor at Leibhardt during the coming term.

Fish and Game Exhibit at Picnic

Ulster County Association, in Co-operation With Conservation Department, Plans Interesting Exhibit at Ulster County Picnic Here Tuesday.

An entirely new and original idea in the way of an exhibit will be displayed at the Ulster County Farm Bureau-Chamber of Commerce Picnic at Forsyth Park, Tuesday, which will be of great interest to the citizens and farmers alike.

The Ulster County Fish and Game Association is putting on an exhibit, demonstrating some of the interest that has been taken for the wild life of this county. They also have the cooperation of the State of New York Conservation Department at Albany and due to their cooperation are enabled to exhibit several rare and choice specimens of live pheasants, Mallord ducks, and other game birds.

The association will also have on exhibit several specimens of live trout and possibly other game fish inhabiting local waters.

The association has been working for several years for the protection of the sportsman by stocking practically all of the streams with game fish and replanting or hatching pheasants and partridges through different woods and fields of the country. The association has not only the interest of the sportsman at heart but also the farmers, and believes that any farmer or land owner who is good enough to allow hunters or fishermen to trespass on their property should be given equal rights and courtesies in return for the favors which they extend.

To this extent the Fish and Game Association has had a considerable number of posters printed on cloth, calling attention to the fact that the sportsman should help protect and preserve the stone walls, fences, and properties over which they may pass while in pursuit of their sports. A large number of these posters have already been distributed to different farmers and a supply will be available at the booth for any land owner who may desire them.

During the past year several millions of fish have been planted in the streams and several thousand of pheasants have been released, either by hatching or distributed direct from the State Conservation Department. This is for the benefit of the sportsman but in turn they are asking that sportsmen who take advantage of the efforts of members of the association be gentlemen and respect the rights of the farmers.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES SATURDAY.

Saturday noon a Cadillac sedan owned and driven by Morris Ehrlick of Brooklyn skidded on a curve on the Ashokan boulevard about half a mile north of the Woodstock road and crashed into a Tydol Oil Company truck which was proceeding north. Mrs. Ehrlick, who was riding with her husband, sustained an injured back and was removed to the City of Kingston Hospital, where she is under the care of Dr. Chandler. The Cadillac car was towed to the Doc Smith garage here for repairs.

Mrs. L. Anderson of Freeport, L. I., and her 10-year-old son were treated at the City of Kingston Hospital by Dr. Geroge F. Chandler Saturday afternoon for injuries received when their car skidded and ditched at Stony Hollow. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hoff and their small child, also of Freeport, were uninjured.

Early American Poet

Walter Jerrold in his biography of the poet says that Oliver Wendell Holmes' grandmother was the great-great-grandmother of Anne Bradstreet. Critics sometimes refer to her as the first poet in the American colonies.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Marion Talley, whose golden voice has made her wealthy, is back from abroad and had to pay only $7.60 as duty on her purchases. Customs inspectors apparently had thought she would have much more, for they searched her twelve pieces of luggage diligently, but found only a $25 shawl dutiable. The opera star said that diet had nothing to do with an increased slimness her friends noted.

Washington—Army fliers have determined by experiment that a man falling from a plane at a great altitude without a parachute would never travel downward faster than 118 miles an hour, and would retain consciousness. They used a dummy in the experiments.

New York — Workers in New York's financial district, who know a great deal about money, have just learned that $3,000,000,000 in cash and securities was moved through the streets in broad daylight without their knowledge. The fortune was that of the Chase National Bank and its customers going five blocks to the bank's new home in armored cars.

New York—Mrs. Charles A. Levine, wife of the first transatlantic air passenger regards as "absurd" rumors growing out of the sale of their home at public auction "I have never thought of filing a suit of any kind against Mabel Boll," she says. "She is my very dear friend." The property at Rockaway, owned by the Levine corporation brought $204,650. Mrs. Levine said there was no special significance to the sale.

St. Louis—Barbara Stanwick took two hours and a half off to be married, arriving from New York at 1:20 p. m., the 20-year-old star of "burlesque" was married to Frank Fay, vaudeville master of ceremonies, and at 4 o'clock was on her way back to New York for the reopening of the play.

Ossining, N. Y.—John Tosky, police said was an excellent cabinet maker when he was not an expert safe-blower. After serving all but 16 months of a 12-year sentence for burglary, he has been sent to Syracuse as a trusty to exhibit at the State Fair his wooden model of one of the cells in which he has spent more than 10 years.

Washington—"Aunt Sammy", one of the 90 women who give advice on housekeeping and home-making for Uncle Sam's Department of Agriculture—is going on the air to Hawaii. She will broadcast daily housewives' chats to the islanders.

New York—Cupid has found New Yorkers well-fortified against his leap-year darts. City Clerk Michael Cruise, who had hoped for a record year, estimates that at the present rate there will be 4,000 less marriages in the big city this year than last.

Boston—The men apparently knew what they were doing when they made the 11-mile swim from Boston Light to Corson Beach "for men only." Miss Frances Vincent, ruled out, hopped into the water anyway, a few minutes late, and beat all but three of the 22 men to the finish.

GRAPELAND FARMS BEING RAPIDLY DEVELOPED.

Grapeland Farms, Inc., a large tract of land consisting of eleven hundred acres, situated at Benton's Corners, near Modena, has been the scene of much activity during the past year. A great area of this land has been made into grape vineyards and orchards of cherries, apples, plums, etc. Now surveyors are at work, to develop the building project contemplated. Building sites are being staked, work has commenced on the dam and a golf course is being arranged at present. Grapeland Farms promises to be a great enterprise in the future as well as a beautiful summer resort, being situated at the base of the Shawangunk Mountains, abounding in beautiful scenery. A large hotel will be built near the dam which will soon be under construction.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Everett Brannen is not very well. She is doctoring with Dr. Bush of Kingston.

Miss Mildred Traver from Kingston spent Saturday evening and Sunday at her former home at this place.

John Bell had the bad luck to lose his horse. He has bought another horse of Jerry Keator.

Everett Brannen has bought another road car.

Mrs. Neva Barrenger from Maybrook is spending some time with her friends and neighbors at this place.

John Traver, Clarence Reeves and Matthew Dymond attended the Rhinebeck Fair last Thursday.

Mrs. Hannah Fillitman and Mrs. William Fillitman, Mrs. Neva Barrenger, Mrs. Bertha Reeves and Mrs. Bertha Traver called on Mrs. E. Brannen Friday afternoon.

Asa Keator was a caller in Kingston last Friday.

Miss Bessie Reeves has returned home. She has been spending some time with relatives at Poughkeepsie.

The picnic at Samsonville was not a success on account of the rainy weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Shurter were at Albany, Wednesday, to hear Governor Smith talk. They have also heard Mr. Hoover and they like his speech much better.

Robert Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orsie Lee, will soon be home from the City of Kingston Hospital, where he has been for treatment for a burn.

Mrs. Anna Gray is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Savage, at Mt. Vernon.

Judson Decker is helping William Gray gather his harvest.

"Cannot Burn or Explode"

(Carbona Cleaning Fluid)

A house may burn to smouldering ashes—a gasoline chariot may go up in one big bang—but fire insurance can't be destroyed unless it is cancelled or allowed to lapse.

A policy of indemnity against loss by fire is a contract and even though the policy itself might be inadvertently destroyed, as long as the contract is in effect the protection is alway there.

It is the only real safeguard against financial loss. It can't "burn or explode."

Attempt on Life Of Vice Crusader

Second Attempt in Three Days Followed by Roundup of Ohio City's Underworld—Bullets and Flames Followed by Flooding House With Natural Gas.

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 27 (AP).—A roundup of all known members of Akron's underworld was under way today following the second attempt in three days on the life of Kyle Ross, vice crusading councilman, who engaged in a gun duel with gangsters after his home had been set afire last night.

Ross, recently appointed by the city council to investigate crime conditions, was fired on as he stood in the kitchen door of his home after he had been awakened by his wife, who had heard an intruder coming up the basement stairs. The bullet shattered one of the door panels.

The councilman switched on flood lights installed in his back yard when his life was first threatened and ran outside and exchanged shots with his assailant. Meanwhile a neighbor, Ed Hardesty, awakened by the firing, seized a gun and shot from his bedroom window at a second man who had appeared near the Ross home. Both attackers fled. None of the bullets took effect.

In the meantime, the basement of the Ross home had become a mass of flames. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze and found that all of the cellar walls had been sprayed with gasoline. A large pile of papers, wood and coal also had been heaped up in the coal room and set afire.

Police yesterday revealed that on Friday night an attempt was made to blow up Ross's home. The incident had been kept secret that a speedier investigation might be made. Officers said his home had been filled with natural gas and the electric current switched off, evidently in the idea that the councilman, finding his home dark, would light matches. The plot failed, however, when a friend accompanying Ross home, grabbed his arm just as he was about to light a match and called his attention to the odor of the gas.

Detectives have had the house under surveillance since then.

Friends of Ross said they believed the attempts on his life resulted from information obtained by the councilman in his investigation. Ross has charged that gambling, racketeering, graft and bootlegging are rampant here.

2 Bombings, Man Killed in Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP).—Vacation is over for Chicago's bad men. Within a 24-hour period ended at 4 o'clock this morning they had thrown two bombs—one of which rocked the loop—and shot a man dead.

The man killed was Benjamin Benjamin, 33, owner and manager of the Standard Amusement Company, operating a carnival on the north side.

Robbers in an automobile stopped the machine in which Benjamin was riding and shot him down when they thought he intended to resist. They escaped with a pouch containing $724 in coin. Other receipts of the company had been taken to Benjamin's hotel a few minutes earlier.

The first bombing wrecked the front of the two story brick plant in which is published the Star, at Chicago Heights. Windows of the business district of the suburb were shattered for a block around. This bombing was attributed by King Williams, editor of the Star, to the newspaper's editorial warfare against gamblers.

The downtown Chicago bombing was at 218-220 North Clark street, just outside the loop and within a block of the Hotel Sherman, many of whose guests were aroused by the report. The building bombed is used as an employment agency on the second floor, while on the street floor it is occupied by a saloon.

A negro porter, West Carpenter, was the only person in the place when the explosion occurred. He was not hurt. He could give police little information concerning a possible motive. The front of the saloon was demolished, although the interior escaped serious damage. The bomb, which appeared to have been made of dynamite, tore a hole in the floor and showered debris into the cellar.

Witnesses who were in the lobby of the Hotel Martin across the street said no automobiles had passed the place for several minutes before the explosion, which led the police to believe that the bomb had been timed and concealed inside the saloon.

ELEANOR GUNN On Fashions

With the Approach of Autumn, Our Interest in Clothes is Revived—Form-Revealing Lines Bring a Zest to the New Mode, the Basic Idea of Which is Elegance

New York—Disregarding both the calendar and the thermometer, shop windows have been filled recently with black velvet dresses. They proclaim the new order of elegance, which seems to be the basic idea of fall fashions.

Those who sat and sweltered during the openings either in Paris or in our own wholesale and import circles felt rather overburdened by grandeur, but knowing from past experiences that extremes have a way of being short-lived and that in fashion, as in other things, the rule of the survival of the fittest prevails, we are not dismayed by all this show of elegance, or embarrassed by the idea that only the richest and rarest of furs and fabrics are wanted.

Red and Blue Are Combined.

It is, of course, no surprise, that velvet heads the list of desirable fabrics, and that black velvet with lace is ushered in with the other rather pretentious stuffs, among which the stiffer fabrics appear to have the call. In furs, however, the reverse is the case; it is the thin pelts, skins that are capable of being handled as though they were fabrics, that hold the center of the stage. Such pelts as broadtail and some of the shaven if not shorn pelts of yesterday show every indication of running away with the race.

Black registers as most elegant for street wear, but one reads of and sees much brown, one tone, called mud, being particularly favored. The combination of red with blue is another interesting note gleaned from fashionable bypaths.

The sensational developments have to do with form-revealing lines, waistlines nearer the normal, and jackets that are fitted in deference to the persistent effort being made to outline the figure.

Brocaded Jackets for Evening.

Designers still concentrate upon the skirt, amplifying and elaborating it by the addition of circular panels, which are frequently shirred. Talbot features brocaded jackets of Persian inspiration as an accompaniment to evening dresses and as an aftermath of the spangled jacket, which has had a successful season.

Lace comes in for considerable attention for evening, a natural outcome of the continued favor accorded picturesque types, many of which are draped, some in a modernized version of the bustle silhouette and others following the sweeping lines of the robe de style.

Taffeta is another choice of the season, sharing honors with metal brocades for the dance and dinner gown. Silhouettes remain diversified, and the ensemble varied, but the ensemble remains of prime importance.

Captain (to Irishman applying for a job on board ship): "Have you ever been to sea before?"

The Son of Erin: "Do you think I came over from Oirland in a cab?"

While touring in Scotland, an American while resting in a wayside cottage was asked: "Would ye hae something to buck ye up—a cooling draught?"

"Well, I don't mind if I do."

"Good," said the Scotchman, "help me open the windows. There's a grand breeze a-blowing."

A Hot Foot.

A Kingston woman was talking with a friend about the athletic achievements of the latter's son.

"Your boy must be an exceptionally fast runner. I see the paper states that he 'fairly burned up the track under his record breaking speed.' I suppose you saw him do it?"

"No, I didn't see him do it," replied the boy's mother, "but I saw the track this morning and there was nothing but cinders there."

What do you do with the time you save by the use of modern conveniences?

A Salesman Proposes.

Well, old girl, I'm gonna give you the first chance to make yourself Mrs. Henry B. Jones in the matrimonial line and I won't take "no" for an answer. Plenty of women are crazy to get a chance at me; since you're a good friend of mine, though, I'm making you the first offer. And let me tell you right now you'll be making the biggest mistake of your life if you don't grab me now while you can get me. Well, whadda you say?

Ask me another: When is a hammock not a hammock? Answer: When it is a spoonholder, of course.

If a doctor was summoned only when needed he would have to do something else to make a living.

First Man: "I tell you the feminine touch adds interest to one's home."

Second Man: "Righto But it's the deuce for subtracting from one's principal in the bank."

"I hear that young Whippesnap has inherited his father's business. What is he going to do with it?"

"Oh, the usual thing, I suppose. Start in at the top and run it down."

Hot words cause coolness—even between good friends.

The trouble with the average man is that he seldom increases his average.

Little Bobby: "Say, Uncle, when are you going to play football again?"

The Rich Uncle: "When am I going to play football again? What makes you ask that question?"

Little Bobby: "Well, Pop says that when you kick off, we're going to get a new automobile and house.

A postcard writer says, "When I drink coffee I can't sleep." How come? With us it's just the opposite. When we sleep we can't drink coffee.

Country Cousin: "What a climb up those stairs to the office."

City Relative: "Why didn't you take the elevator?"

Country Cousin: "I meant to, but I just missed the blamed thing."

"My, but it's hot!"

"Shure, an' it ain't the heat, Mrs. Murphy, it's the humanity."

Eleanor Gunn Says

New York—Printed velvet dresses, worn extensively at the Paris races, have received great impetus for early fall wear.

White pique for the incidental trimmings of French frocks and the frequent use of linen and lingerie touches are important.

Printed tunics with plain skirts are a version of the compose frock popular here and abroad.

While reports dealing with color are received from all smart centers, the exclusive set show a marked preference for all white.

The sleeveless dress, more or less unheralded and unsung, is enjoying its usual summer reign.

Scratch and other long-haired felt novelties are spoken of with respect by millinery authorities.

Patou's swimming suits, with contrasting shirts and somewhat flaring shorts, have met with American favor.

Rust and russet tones, alone or with white, are very chic.

Short furs are much in use for trimming, although fox, especially cross and beige fox, holds its own.

The black and white ensemble once more scored at the Grand Steeplechase and other race meets in Paris.

Snubbed again—

but he won her when he learned what was wrong

He was dumbfounded! To be cut dead like that by her—the one girl he cared for! Why had she done it?

He didn't know then—but that very evening an advertisement caught his eye. It told about "B.O."—Body Odor! It explained that no one is safe from this unpardonable fault; and that the offender seldom suspects he is guilty.

Perhaps that was it. He had noticed that lately many people looked at him queerly whenever he approached them. He was sure he had learned the secret.

Today this same chap is a great favorite everywhere. And he has won the girl who snubbed him. Read how he found that the simple way to overcome his handicap was delightful, too.

Body odor needless now

"I first got Lifebuoy as a deodorizing toilet soap to guard against body odor. But we liked it so well that soon the whole family was using it for all toilet purposes.

"Lifebuoy gives so much lather, is so cleansing and invigorating. After a Lifebuoy bath, you feel clean, refreshed—no fear of 'B.O.'

Fine for complexions, too

"Lifebuoy's gentle, antiseptic lather is splendid for the skin, too. My sister's complexion looks much softer and smoother since she started using Lifebuoy. We also feel that Lifebuoy helps protect our health because it removes germs.

"And Lifebuoy is such a clean-smelling toilet soap. This clean scent vanishes as soon as you rinse."

Try Lifebuoy a week and you, too, will use it for life. Get some today.

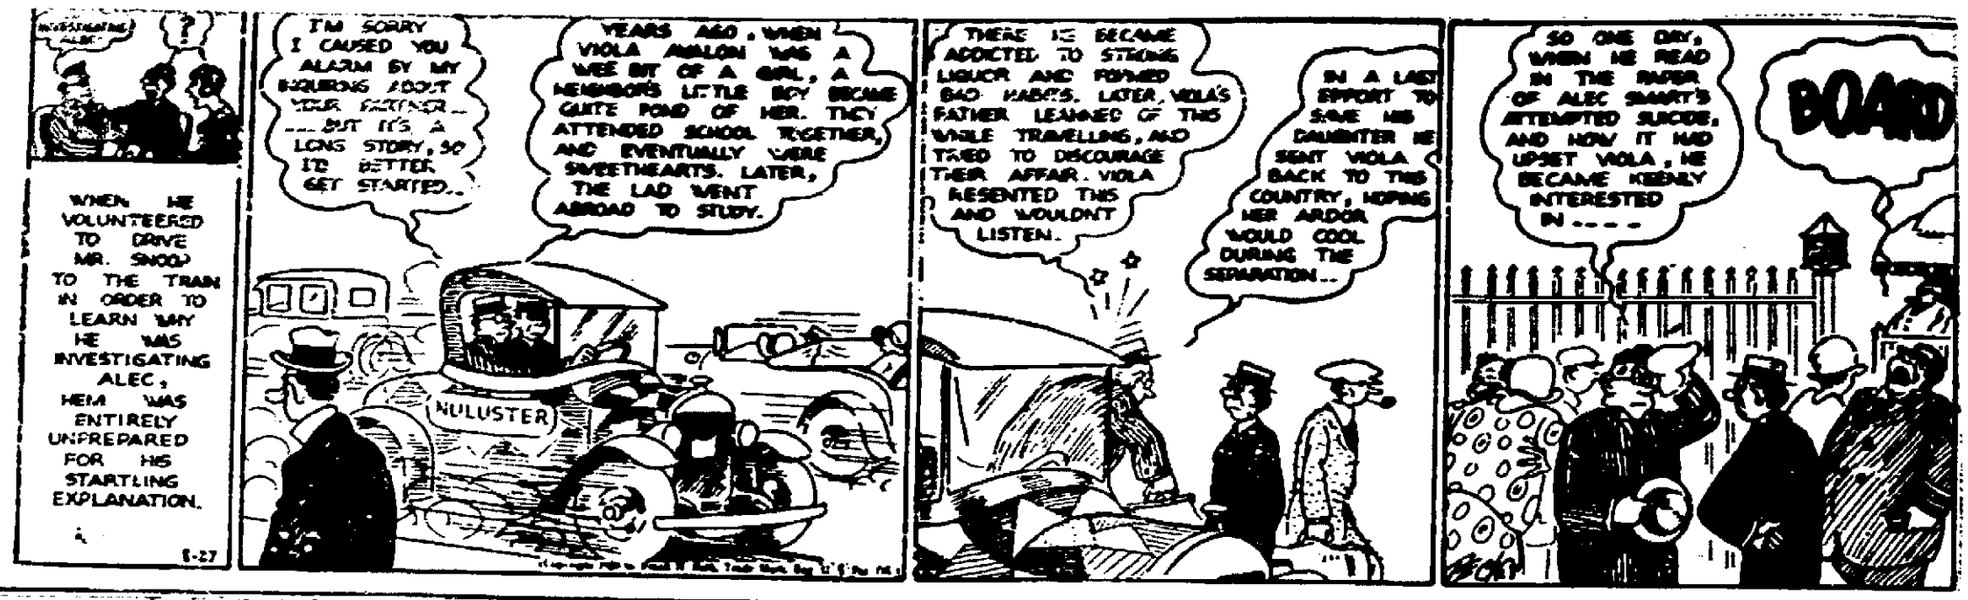
GAS BUGGIES—To Be Continued.



THE STORY

CHAPTER I—From his French-Canadian mother, Norman Erickson inherits a distaste for life on the water, which is beyond the understanding of his father, Gustaf, veteran deep-water sailor. At Mrs. Erickson's death Gustaf determines to make Norman, who has been working for a grocer, his partner in his fishing boat, at once. In rebellious mood, Norman seeks comfort from Julie Richaud, French-Canadian playmate of his school days. Gustaf, going to the aid of a drowning friend, is crippled.

CHAPTER II—After months, Gustaf is in a measure able to resume his occupation. Ed Baker, young fisherman, Norman's lifelong enemy, fans ill feeling between father and son, and Norman determines to seek employment in the lighthouse service. He passes the examination and is appointed to Blind Man's Eye lighthouse. Before he has accepted, Norman refuses to accompany his father on a fishing trip, during a fierce storm. Gustaf accuses him of cowardice. Indignant, Norman goes to Blind Man's Eye. Captain Stocking is in command, living with his daughter Susan.

CHAPTER III—Ed Baker gives Stocking and his daughter a biased account of Norman's conduct and of Gustaf's denunciation of his son. Susan is inclined to believe Baker's story.

CHAPTER IV

Fire!

Norman awakened, the morning after Ed Baker was hurt, with a sense that he had drowned in his boots to a cold fifty fathoms. Only his head had been saved. And that ached.

Doctor McCarthy had come and gone before one o'clock.

"Not a bad cut," he had said, after examining Baker's head, "only a bit of a clout. How'd you get it?"

Baker growled and no one else answered.

"You didn't need me, with Erickson here," McCarthy said. "He can tie up a broken head, lugged and toted for his father long enough to know how . . . how long, Erickson?"

"Not long enough," Sue Stocking put in with a sharp voice.

"No?" Doctor McCarthy looked at her inquiringly. He shrugged his shoulders indifferently at whatever he saw in her expression. "You'll be all right tomorrow," he assured Baker.

Sue Stocking had not slept. She had changed to a severe dress of blue denim when Norman reported in the lighthouse kitchen for his breakfast. Norman ate two flap-jacks, drank two cupfuls of coffee.

"More?" asked the girl.

"No more."

He left her angrily. She was trying to humiliate him, eh? Called him a coward at midnight, and next morning made no amends for it? Well, she need not. Let her be superior. He remembered that Julie Richaud had told him he was no coward. Evidence was against him. But he had work to do, a hard first day's work. And there, still sleeping heavily on the couch in the parlor was Ed Baker to be settled!

Norman had swept down the tower stairs and was scrubbing the white stone steps when Sue Stocking summoned him to the house. He dropped his pail and hurried. Captain Stocking and Baker were talking together earnestly in the parlor. The keeper's red forehead was covered with large drops of perspiration. He was plainly uncomfortable.

"Baker's ready to start home," he said testily. "Me and you'll have to get his boat off. If we can float it into deep water he thinks he can steer."

Using an old stick of wreckage as a lever, the keeper and his assistant pried the heavy fishboat off the sand, while Baker scowled on the beach. At last, after repeated rollings, the boat floated into open water. Captain Stocking with Norman and Baker rowed out in a skiff and caught it; its owner tumbled aboard. The propeller turned over, churning bubbles away from the fan-tail stern. Baker climbed to the deck, set his boots down firmly on the tiller and eased it to the left. He called good-by to Captain Stocking. The keeper nodded gloomily. He rowed shoreward with the short nervous stroke of a deep-water sailor aboard a small boat.

"And it will look fine on the report!" he growled as he wet his feet in the wash.

"This business last night?"

"And nothing else!"

"Why report it?"

"Why? For the reason I've been in this service ten year, young man, ten year I tell you, and never a black mark agin' my name. If I was to drown this affair with Baker blabberin' to headquarters, it would bring inspectors like gulls to a cleanin' shack. And I want your statement, wrote neat and careful . . . and true, if it's the same to you . . . to pin to mine. Best go in the house and do it now."

Norman paused.

"What's Baker going to blabber?" he demanded. "Those weren't my tracks in the sand. Whoever hit Baker came ashore in a skiff."

"I know. Think I didn't look the ground over myself first thing this morning? That's why it's best to be clever. It to headquarters allows he starts his private fog signal squallin'."

Sue had finished her morning's work and was reading in the parlor when Norman approached. "Your father says give me the pen," he reported abruptly.

Sue Stocking closed the book, marking the place with a piece of net twine.

"Wait a minute," she said, "I want to talk to you. I know what you want the pen for. You're going to write your report on what happened last night. I want to talk to you first. Why'd you hit Ed Baker?"

"I didn't!" he cried. "I didn't hit anyone."

She looked at his perspiring face critically. Then with a wry gesture, she turned back to her book.

"Somebody hit him," she commented suspiciously.

Norman flushed.

"I did not," he insisted.

She made no answer. He sat down wrathfully at the table and labored over the report. When he had finished, he laid it down silently and left the room. Let her believe what she wanted! There were other things to think about. He climbed up to the tower.

"The lens first," Captain Stocking said, putting him to work. "And remember, easy, easy! Ten thousand dollars it cost. A split head will mend, but these lenses . . . no mending then."

Captain Stocking was not a driving master. He treated Norman as a superior should, a small superior commanding a small vessel. He watched like a hawk but he never bullied. It had been the bullying that sent Norman away from Madrid. Life was pleasant here at the Eye.

"An' when the inspector comes he'll be asking . . ."

The assistant heard the warning a dozen times, fifty, in the first two weeks.

"Why'd You Hit Ed Baker?"

"When's he coming?" he inquired one morning. "When you expect him?"

"I expect him," Captain Stocking answered, "when he's least expected. It's the way of 'em. I've seen 'em a-plenty. Lor', wasn't I scared time I was assistant at Spectacle reef? My first light tha. was. The keeper got the pennant there that year, out the whole district he had the best kept station. I've never got it yet. Think every year I'm going to. . . ." He scuffed down the stair.

Norman went on with his polishing. He had served a month with no word from Madrid Bay. He wondered about his father, usually at night. It was good weather for fishing; if old Gustaf were out he was lifting heavy hauls.

Several times, in the evening always, he heard the peculiar "chug . . . chug, chug" of Baker's engine putting in cautiously along the reef to the lighthouse, heard Baker's heavy voice and Sue's, laughing and talking. But he never encountered Baker face to face. Sue managed that.

Sue mailed often in the coast guard boat to Madrid. She asked him always if there was anything he needed. There was only one thing, and at first he did not mention it to her. But the second time he gave her a letter and two pennies.

"Put it in the post office, will you, please? Buy a stamp."

Susan did not look at the address until she was half across the bay. When she did, she saw that the name upon the envelope was Gustaf Erickson.

Norman had offered to return to Madrid if his father wanted him, and enclosed fifty dollars, half his first month's pay.

He never received a reply.

After a fortnight he wrote Jim Nelson. He folded a five-dollar bill into this envelope, instructing honest old Jim to buy Gustaf anything in the way of extras that he needed, and to send word to Blind Man's Eye if an emergency arose. Jim answered on a postal card.

"Sure," he wrote, "I'm standing by. Gus is all right. I wouldn't come back, not yet. I'm easing up his mind. I'll leave you know when to try seeing him," and that was all.

Twice on days off duty the assistant keeper walked up the sand to the coast guard station. Captain Parish neglected to recognize him the first time. The second visit he nodded, a curt businesslike salute as if his minutes were valuable and he feared Norman might waste them.

Then, one hot windy morning in August, Captain Parish stuck his lean face into the tower door.

"I got a new man, Sam'l," the coast guard captain said. "I been two short all season. I had a little time, thought I'd run in and see ye. . . ." They walked down the beach, talking.

That night at supper Samuel Stocking shared the news with his daughter.

"Cap Parish's new number seven man come this week."

"Do you know him?" asked Sue.

"Ed Baker," her father answered, and kept his eyes on his pork chop.

"Oh," said Sue, "I knew he'd been talking coast guard."

Norman's fork picked up its meat mechanically. He had no reason for flushing. What matter if ten Bakers came to the point?

But he felt disheartened. How had Baker managed that? And why? Had he contemplated enlistment in the life-saving service before Norman came to the lighthouse? He went outside after supper and sat moodily on the steps. The house smelled sickeningly of fresh paint, with which Sue had redecorated her bedroom. He went to bed at eight o'clock. At nine Captain Stocking, perspiring and excited, awakened him.

"Parish called," he cried, "he got a tip that the tender with inspector aboard was to Skillagallee a week come Monday. It'll be here any time. Scrub down the tower steps, first thing tomorrow. See that your new uniform's pressed and your shoes blackened proper."

Norman worked deliberately. He was curious about the inspector. But the thought uppermost in his mind was the neighboring presence of Ed Baker. Baker had some purpose in getting assignment to Blind Man's Reef. It was childish to think he had come just to plague him . . . it might be on account of Sue Stocking?

Friday morning, while Norman stood watch, he sighted a vessel moving from the northwest. She carried few lights and bore off the usual track of passenger steamers and freighters. He hurried into the house and stirred out Captain Stocking. The keeper squinted through the window.

"That's her," he said and sighed relievedly. "Well, well, well . . . four o'clock of a morning. Now ain't that like inspectors?" He went into the hall and howled: "Sue, wake up for the love o' the locks! Get into your uniform, Erickson. And listen . . . if you're spoke to, speak. If you ain't keep your hatch battened."

Norman changed to his other uniform, combed his hair and put on his new blue cap. He looked like a seaman. From old Gustaf he had inherited bone and skin and complexion and the indelible salty brand of the sea, no matter what French farm blood his mother had left him. At the exact moment of sunup he flashed out the light, just as a trim white steam tender slowed down its speed a quarter-mile off the petal.

The inspector's anchor plunked into the water, spattering up a white shower. The tender's round bottomed, clinker boat slid down from the davits and three men dropped into her. Two of them hauled at the oars with a lazy swing. The third hunched over the tiller at the stern.

Captain Stocking grunted. "It's him," he said.

"Who?"

"The big boy, himself. Cat-eye McGeegan, chief inspector. Why'd he come? Lord-a-mercy, I hate the sight o' his sidelights!"

The chief inspector was a lean Irishman, sixty years old, with arms that stuck out like yards on a mast. He walked like a seaman.

"My new assistant. He's called Erickson," said Captain Stocking.

The inspector examined Norman with one short inquisitive glance. Norman knew at once why they called him Cat-eye. His eyes were small and light in color, set close together at the sides of a long, sinuous nose; they were lost in his great bread face which was shaped like a cabbage and pitted by smallpox.

"Good morning, Erickson," he said, "how long you been here?"

"Two months, sir."

"You're the lad from Madrid Bay? I've got a report on you, report on a fight. Have to look into it. Come in side, Stocking. Wait here, Erickson I'll talk to you later."

Ten minutes passed while Norman fidgeted. That lying Baker . . . he was near forgetting the unpleasantness of that first night. He walked uncomfortably up and down the sand. Another five minutes; then Captain Stocking appeared with McGeegan.

"Remember, lad, you're on probation," McGeegan said. "The capt'n here," he waved his long right arm, "has give me a good word for you. It ain't seamanly to go bunglin' fellows in the dark, and you're the look o' salt about you. Erickson's a decent deep-water name. Capt'n says he don't think you did it. Me, I don't believe you did, either. Least I don't want to believe it. We'll call it closed. Don't go fighting th. coast guard. This is a decent service, need decent men. Now the tower. . . ."

Captain Stocking made a sign for Norman to follow. He walked stiff-kneed at their heels, his head humming. Decent service, eh? Well, it would have no cause to be ashamed of him.

McGeegan fussed for half an hour about the lamp. When he had finished he said: "It'll do," as if disappointed at discovering no fault, and tramped up to the house. Sue stood in the doorway, wearing a great, white, starched apron with sleeves. McGeegan scowled when he saw her and gave her a thin good morning. She showed him the parlor first. Inspector McGeegan looked it over critically, sniffed the air, kicked back the green carpet and hunted for dust under it. There was none. He looked at Sue with a little more approval.

"Now the rest of the establishment. Lead the way, Keeper. The sleeping quarters first, then the fog signal, and after that we'll talk requisitions."

Captain Stocking's bedroom, which Norman had never seen, was bare of furnishings. The keeper scorned rugs in sleeping quarters. There was a narrow bed, with two red woolen blankets folded at its foot, a table with a comb upon it, a small mirror above. Cat eye McGeegan moved to the bed, examined the sheets, felt the blankets and muttered, "Clean and dry, all right," then passed to Norman's quarters.

There were four bare rooms on the other side of the house, arranged for the assistant keeper, should he be a man of family. Norman had scrubbed the floors of his unused apartment twice the previous week. He had washed and polished the windows. He had shined the door knobs. His clothes closet hung in order.

There still remained Sue's bedroom. Sue opened the door with a proud careless gesture. A strong smell of fresh paint floated out into the hallway. The walls gleamed a fresh seashell pink. The floor was spotless, covered with rag rugs; the white curtains were stiff with starch. Certainly this room would find approval.

The inspector was scowling all over his face.

"Shell pink!" he cried. He turned pettishly on Captain Stocking. "If that ain't the wit of a rabbit! You painted the walls the wrong color. . ."

"I painted them!" Sue interrupted.

"You? Well, I might have known it. And what's a color chart for, I ask you? You got a chart? Aye, you have? Well, there's plenty of colors and shades you durst use, plenty o' them. But no. You go pickin' your own kind. That shade ain't on this year's chart, ain't on no chart this side o Singapore. Think of marrin' up a room in a lighthouse with a color like that! Got to be done over and done quick! Shell pink!"

He pulled an official paint chart from his pocket and handed it to her. "Nice thing to lose the pennant over," he snapped at Captain Stocking. "Sure, you had a chance to win it. Chance and leeway to spare. All's shipshape everywhere else. Tower shines like the sun. Who's been polishin' the tower?"

"The assistant," Captain Stocking answered. His voice shook, as if about to break into pieces. "I've learnt him better than my own gal, Inspector."

"Skillagallee's all right," said McGeegan. "Give it the pennant, I shall. No woman up at Skillagallee. . . ."

"Sue's new world never 'a' done such a thing!"

"It's the way of most women," the inspector gyrated, "a show of poor discipline, Stocking."

He ducked back into the corridor. Captain Stocking, sweating amazingly, followed him out-of-doors.

Norman felt sorry for Captain Stocking. After all, what difference did it make what color a girl daubed the walls of her bedroom? How'd it affect ships on the lakes?

Safety First—

Real Estate, be it a tract, farm, subdivision, plot, business or building lot, represents an investment incumbered or unincumbered.

Incumbrances may be in the form of outstanding interests, dower rights, mortgages, tax liens, tax sales or unpaid street assessments.

In purchasing real estate, investigate its location, accessibility, surroundings and market value, then, if you decide to invest, have a search and examination of the title made by this Company, which will fully and clearly show all matters of record, including any restrictions affecting the premises, so that your attorney can intelligently advise you whether it is an investment which can be turned into ready money, without loss or resort to the courts to give you relief on account of some unknown flaw in your title.

This Company specializes in title work and gives expert service in safeguarding your interest from loss on account of title defects.

Spencer's School Will Open Sept. 4

Spencer's Business School Night Sessions Will Begin on Sept. 11th —Conducted for 25 Years by Charles L. Kelly.

The fall sessions of Spencer's Business School will open on August 27 and registrations for day and evening school will continue until September 4. The night school begins on Tuesday, September 11.

Spencer's Business School, one of the most successful commercial schools in the state, organized in 1889, is now nicely located in its quarters in the Uptown Freeman building, where it occupies the two upper floors. This new building was constructed especially for a business school. Lighting, an important thing in school work, has been given special attention as light is furnished for the school by forty windows on four sides. For evening school the latest type of electric fixtures have been installed.

Demand for business training has increased considerably in the past few years. This increase and the desire to provide modern quarters for pupils prompted Prof. Kelly, president of the school, to seek new quarters. In 1924, the present building was under construction, and soon after was occupied by faculty and pupils of the school. The building is admirably adapted for school purposes and has accommodations for 260 pupils.

Spencer's Business School was organized some thirty-nine years ago, and for more than twenty-five years has been under the proprietorship of Prof. Kelly, who first came here from Clinton Liberal Institute and Military Academy at Fort Plain, N. Y. The present annual enrollment is over 200 pupils, and it is estimated that the school has 13,000 alumni. At present there are four instructors engaged in teaching the several commercial and stenographic studies at the school.

Prof. Charles L. Kelly was born at Baldwinsville, Onondaga county, N. Y. His early life was spent on a farm. In 1892, he was graduated with honor from the Oswego Business School. The following year he accepted a responsible position at Clinton Liberal Institute and Military Academy at Fort Plain, where he served for three years as instructor of the commercial and stenographic branches, private secretary to the president of the faculty and commander of the Cadet Band. In 1896 he resigned as instructor in Clinton Liberal Institute to join the teaching staff of the school of which he is now sole proprietor.

The present location is near the trolley line, as well as all bus lines, making it convenient for out-of-town students. A large number of registrations have been made for the September classes, both day and evening. Students who intend to start with the beginning classes are invited to visit the school office this month to make the necessary arrangements.

SPENCER'S BUSINESS SCHOOL IN FREEMAN BUILDING.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Aug. 27.—A fatal automobile accident happened Friday afternoon, August 24, between 4 and 5 o'clock in front of the residence of Paul Smith on the opposite side of South Chestnut street, when Edward Baldwin was returning home after being at the New Paltz swimming place. His car ran up the embankment from the street to the sidewalk and turned over, pinning him underneath. He died shortly after being removed to his home. Frederick Mack, Jr., who was riding with him, was able to get out and was taken to his home, where a doctor was summoned to attend him. His injuries have not been reported, but were not thought at the time to be serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Schoonmaker motored to Albany on Sunday to see Mrs. Joseph B. Clement, who was recently operated on for appendicitis at the Memorial Hospital.

The meeting of the Seekers' Class and Home Department of the Methodist Sunday school was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Mack on Friday afternoon, August 24. Considerable business was transacted. Those present were Miss Dora Allen, Mrs. Edith Van Valen, Mrs. Harry Oakley, Mrs. Conklin, Mrs. Abel Quick, Mrs. Frank Guinac and daughter, Blanche, Ruth Van Valen, Elaine Kniffen, Mrs. Webb Kniffen, Mrs. Thomas Krom, Mrs. Amon Roosa, Mrs. Harold Van Kleeck and Mrs. Mack and daughter, Faith.

Mrs. Esther Yost and daughter, Mary, and Miss Marie Anderson were in Poughkeepsie on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Zimmerman are spending a vacation in New York city.

Clifford Gerow with two children of East Orange, N. J., and William F. Gerow of California visited their mother, Mrs. Keziah Gerow, of Church street over the week end.

Edward Schoonmaker is taking a trip through the southern states. He has visited Washington, D. C., Raleigh, Columbia, Savannah, Jacksonville, Fort Lauderdale and Miami.

Mrs. Alexander A. Poucher has returned from Danbury, Conn., where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Ives.

Wednesday of last week was the closing of Mikanakawa Camp, the Boy Scouts all going to their respective homes to prepare for the school opening. One of the last sports the boys had was a game of baseball with the Y. M. C. A. team of Kingston. The score was 4 to 3 in favor of the camp boys. They were a joyous and happy crowd leaving for home.

Under the supervision of Supervisor M. Shaw the men are making great headway on the Springtown road along the village dump, after a complaint from Springtown residents. The road is being widened, trees, shrubs and other obstructions are being hastily removed, the sharp curve at the Humpo crossing is being made straight, the telephone poles set back and pipes laid to drain off the surplus water. Springtowners are pleased with the quick action taken and soon they will have a road to feel proud of.

Miss Betty Young is entertaining Miss Geraldine Hammer of Gardiner this week.

William E. Harcourt of Ardonia was in New Paltz on Thursday.

Mrs. Amon Roosa was in Poughkeepsie on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel R. Akins spent Sunday with Mr. Akins's people at Catskill.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kelly are recovering congratulations on the arrival of a son, Robert.

Jesse LeFevre, who has been ill, is able to be around again.

MODENA.

Modena, Aug. 27.—The block dance which was to be held at Modena Saturday evening, September 1, has been postponed indefinitely.

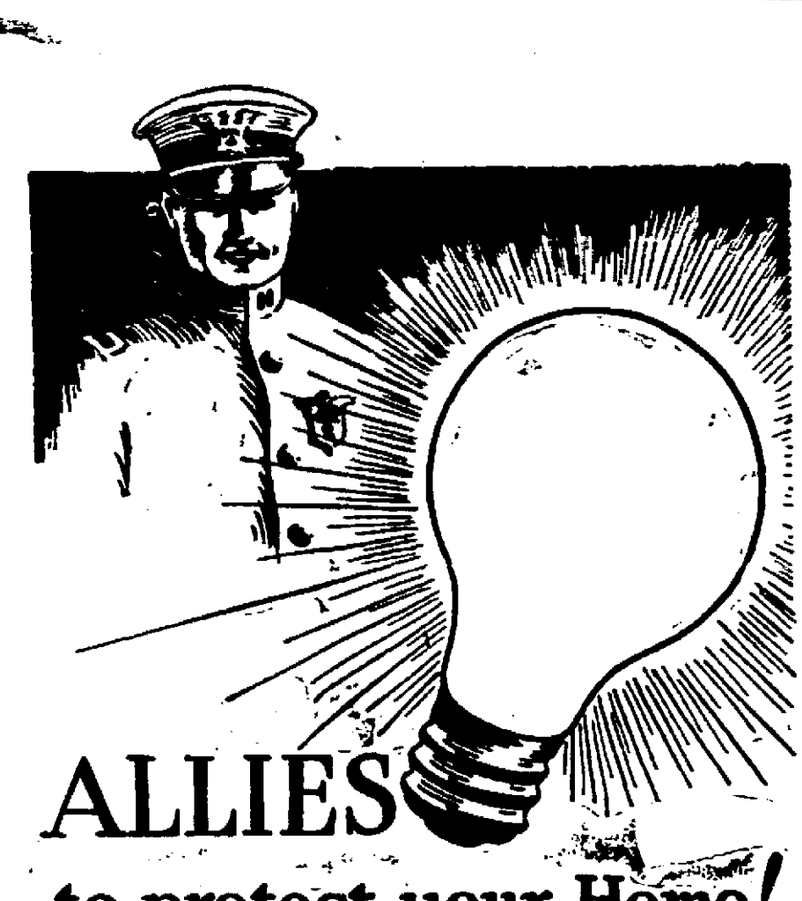
Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hasbrouck, Jr., entertained guests at their home Friday evening.

The way to reduce flesh is to stop consuming so much food; the way to reduce taxes is to stop consuming so much of the people's money.



ALLIES
to protect your Home!

Police and light are the foes of crime. They are allies to protect your home.

A darkened home is the best prospect for the prowler. Police records indicate that the preponderance of petty crime and particularly thievery and burglary occur under the cover of darkness.

You can keep a 25 watt lamp burning in your home all night for less than 3c. This is certainly inexpensive police protection.

Mrs. Edward Young will be one of the speakers at the State Fair at Syracuse this week and will take in the Farm and Home Bureau exercises.

A camp supper will be held by the Maids and Matrons Club Wednesday evening, August 29, at the Archer summer home of the Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Wilke of Philadelphia. The public is invited and a moderate charge will be made to cover expenses. The Rev. Wilke was a former pastor of the Milton Presbyterian Church and was a great help to this community.

The Rev. Cecil Haworth, pastor of the Friends' Church, and Miss Esta Bedford of Richmond, Ind., were united in marriage last Sunday at the home of the bride's parents. They will make their home here for the present. The Rev. Haworth has been spending his vacation in Indiana.

The Rev. H. F. Wilke had charge of the service at the Friends' Church last Sunday morning.

The annual field day of St. James Church was postponed on account of the stormy weather until the latter part of the week.

The wet weather has done considerable damage to the fruit crops in this section especially the peaches which are rapidly decaying on the trees.

Many local people attended the Ellenville and Dutchess county fairs the past week.

The Ladies' Aid Society held its monthly meeting at the home of Miss Lizzie Rhodes on Friday afternoon.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Needlecraft and Women's Missionary Societies was held at the home of Mrs. Edward Young on Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance in spite of the stormy day. A final report was made in regard to the annual fair, $10 being realized from the sales of articles.

Miss Mary Shaughness was taken with a serious attack of appendicitis last Monday morning. She was taken to St. Luke's Hospital where an operation was performed. She was found to be in a very serious condition but is at present getting along much better. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

Charles Hepworth of Brooklyn, a former resident of Milton, has signed a contract to act in the play "Four a Day," soon to be presented in New York. Mr. Hepworth is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Ordway. His many friends and relatives here wish him success in his new venture.

Mrs. Clyde Miller, Miss Bessie Scott, Mrs. George Wood and daughter, Mary, of Newburgh, have gone on a ten days' visit in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Clarke and sons have returned from a motor trip to Minnesota, Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Estes Park, Yellowstone. They traveled 5,800 miles in their car and 1,200 miles by steamer, taking their car on the boat. The entire trip was made without any damage to their car, no flat tires, etc.

Glenn and Gerald Clarke are busy painting the interior of the south road school in District No. 2.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Marking up of the call money rate from 7 to 7½ per cent, coincident with the calling of about $40,000,000 in bank loans, temporarily checked the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market. Waves of selling swept through the market and carried more than a score of the popular issues down 2 to 4 points below Saturday's final quotations. But buying support was quickly supplied and new leaders brought forward by pool operators.

Outside of the credit situation, chief outside interest centered in the publication of a series of July railroad earnings reports, most of which made favorable comparison with the same month of last year. Western roads made the best showing, due to the heavy movement of agricultural products. The American Woolen Co., one of the few large industrial corporations to make a report during the day, showed another large deficit in the first half of 1928.

With the outside public apparently in a buying mood, operators for the rise whirled up their favorites, forcing "shorts" to cover with large losses in several issues. National Biscuit was bid up nearly 5 points and Loose Wiles lifted 5 to a new high record at 64¾. Electric Auto Lite extended its gain of 4 points by touching a new top at 93¾ and Mack Trucks, American International, Continental Insurance and Abraham and Straus sold 3 or 4 points higher.

In the break, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Purity Baking dropped 4 points and Radio, National Cash Register, Wright and Jewel Tea fell back 3 points or more. All rallied from the low levels.

Song Popular Among Rovers of Caribbean

The sea-song of the pirates with its weird refrain of "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest" which Robert Louis Stevenson introduces into his famous book "Treasure Island" is in part at least authentic and was sung by the pirates and buccaneers who roved the Caribbean sea in the late Seventeenth and early Eighteenth centuries. Dead Man's Chest was an island of the Virgin group, which has been christened "Dead Chest Island," thereby losing much of its piratical flavor. To this island the pirates used to repair, to careen their ships, stretch their legs drink rum, sing their buccaneering songs and make merry after their own fashion. Curiously enough there is a little church on the Chilean coast which is obviously built of ship's timbers. Recently a traveler of an inquiring mind, reasoning that if the church were built of ship's timbers, the bell would also come from a ship, determined to investigate. A climb among the rafters did not reveal the name of the ship, as he had hoped, but around the edge of the bell were inscribed the words: "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest." All that the clergyman knew was that the church bell came from a ship that was wrecked in 1722, which was just the time when the West Indies were getting hot for pirates, and many were being driven into the Pacific.

Searching for Potato Harvesting Machinery

The program of the German government committee for agricultural engineering includes an investigation into potato harvesting machinery with the object of finding a machine to lift and collect potatoes on a large scale. In introducing the subject the committee notes that in no country does the potato play such a large part as in Germany, which harvests about a third of the world's production of potatoes. In order to harvest these Germany has every year to obtain the assistance of some 100,000 foreign workers. Its own laborers are growing less and less inclined to undertake this kind of labor.

Chicken Splinters

Five-year-old Betty was very much interested while mother was removing the pin-feathers from a chicken she was preparing for dinner and seemed to take in every move of the operation. Near the conclusion of the meal Betty desired very much to hand a small bone to the family's canine pet, but mother demurred, saying the pet might get bone splinters in his little throat and choke. "Oh, no," quickly responded the little girl, "I saw you take out all the splinters."—Philadelphia Record.

All Electric Service Restored

All electric service of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation that was interfered with by the flood of Sunday, has been restored. The Honk Falls station resumed operating this afternoon. It had ceased Sunday when flood waters entered the station. The transmission line between Honk Falls and Kerhonkson has been repaired.

The only two real interruptions to the service, according to company officials, were at Kerhonkson, where service ceased at 11 o'clock Sunday night and was restored at 1:40 o'clock this morning, and at Napanoch and Wawarsing, where service went out at 11 o'clock Sunday evening but was restored at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It would have been restored sooner but owing to the high water it had been impossible for the repair men to work.

PICTURES OF FLOOD TAKEN FROM A PLANE

This morning an airplane flew over Rosendale and the Rondout creek taking pictures from the air of flood conditions that prevailed. The plane was from New York city. On its return to New York it flew low over the downtown section of Kingston.

Search For Missing Plane.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27 (AP).—Search for the British Columbia Airways monoplane with four passengers and crew of two missing since Saturday morning when it encountered dense fog on the trip from Victoria B. C., to Seattle, turned today to the Olympic peninsula southwest of Port Hadlock, where the plane was reported seen by three women and nearly a dozen children.

Public Park to Open.

DeWitt Lake, situated at DeWitt's Mills, about four miles from Kingston, will be opened as a public park by Charles Sommer, proprietor of Sommer's Winter Garden at Walden. There will be places for bathing, picnics and campers. Winter sports will also be conducted at the lake.

Hopeless

Nonsupport is the eternal problem of the divorce court and, like love itself, forever old and forever new. Los Angeles listened to a new version the other day when a colored couple appeared on the age-old charge.

There was much arguing pro and con, but Mandy won her case when she summed up the whole situation by stating: "Yo' honor, dat niggah ob mine am so shiftless he can't find enough washin' to keep me busy!"

What Women Would Know

Every woman probably wants to learn what all other women find wrong with their marriages, thinks a medical authority of note, writing in the Woman's Home Companion.

Joyce of West Hurley and Mrs. J. A. Joyce of this city. Fraternally he was connected with Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, J. O. U. A. M.; Improved Order of Red Men and the I. O. O. F. By trade Mr. Peterson was a carpenter. Funeral Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Interment in Montrepose cemetery.

PADLOCK PROCEEDINGS ADVANCED ON CALENDAR

Minneapolis, Aug. 27 (AP).—Abatement proceedings to padlock homes and apartments used for vending liquor will be advanced on the federal court calendar, it was indicated today by J. H. S. Gifford, assistant United States district attorney, who seeks to close 26 homes in St. Paul and Minneapolis for a period of a year.

Applications for injunctions to close 16 homes in Minneapolis and ten in St. Paul where liquor violations have been found were filed by Mr. Gifford and are part of a docket of 61 requests for abatement of various establishments before the federal court.

Because of the large number of abatement proceedings pending, federal judges have agreed to advance them on the calendar, Gifford said.

His stand that abatement proceedings under prohibition law apply as stringently to dwellings as to places of business, such as soft drink bars or clubs, was reiterated by Mr. Gifford.

SHANDAKEN.

Shandaken, Aug. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. B. Duryea and daughter and granddaughter of Jamaica, N. Y., are stopping at David Griffin's.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt entertained friends from Nyack on Saturday.

The chicken supper on Saturday night at the church hall was a decided success. About $90 was realized. A large number were present. The ladies wish to thank all who contributed to its success.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Knight and Miss Josephine Knight of Washington, D. C., are visiting at Burr Knight's.

William Drake, Asa Drake, son, Harry, and daughters, Catherine and Gertrude, and Mrs. Jeanette McCullough and daughter, Sarah, were guests at C. E. Wood's over the week end.

Mrs. Anne Cleveland was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Cleveland on Thursday.

The Misses Louise and Marian Knight of Chicago, Ill., formerly summer visitors in this locality, are guests at the Gomoo Farm.

Mrs. Marietta Lehmann of Brooklyn, who was visiting friends here, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Fouley of New York are spending their vacation at the home of Mr. Fouley's parents in this village.

Dr. Gabeline, noted Bible teacher and author, will preach in the Shandaken Methodist Church on Sunday morning, September 2, at 11 o'clock, standard time.

Midweek prayer service on Wednesday night at the M. E. Church conducted by the pastor, C. E. Hewett, after which a meeting of the trustees of the church will be held. All are expected to be present.

School will open on Tuesday, September 4, with Miss Edson of Oneonta, N. Y., as principal and Miss B. K. Hunt of Arena, N. Y., primary. Extensive improvements have been made in the school building in this place. New plumbing and electric lights have been installed and everything has been done to make it sanitary, healthful and pleasant.

Society Notes

Guinness-Ryan

Miss Mildred Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan of Newburgh and a graduate of the Newburgh Academy and New Paltz Normal School, was united in marriage to William F. Guinness of Pittsburgh at St. Patrick's Church, Newburgh, Tuesday morning, August 21. Mr. Guinness, a graduate of Columbia University and Columbia School of Engineering, is employed by the Federal Water Service Corporation of New York city.

Hasbrouck-Fennell.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Fennell of Cohoes announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Alberta, to Kenneth W. Hasbrouck, formerly of this city, on Saturday morning, August 18, at 10:30 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal Church at Cohoes. The Rev. Ernest J. Hopper pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Viola B. Hewitt of Cohoes, a classmate at the New York State College for Teachers. Harold P. Allen of Waterbury, Conn., fraternity brother of the bridegroom at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, was best man. Mrs. Chester Scott presided at an organ recital preceding and during the ceremony. The bride wore a navy blue georgette ensemble with a small beige felt hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of snapdragons. The bridesmaid wore a dress of rose beige flat crepe with matching hat and carried a colonial bouquet of snapdragons. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held for relatives of the two families at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip in Canada and New England, Mr. and Mrs. Hasbrouck will reside at 1 Spring street, Oneonta, N. Y. Mr. Hasbrouck is assistant manager of the Oneonta District of the Associated Gas and Electric System.

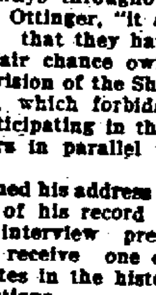
OTTINGER WOULD GIVE RAILROADS MORE RIGHTS.

Syracuse, Aug. 27 (AP).—Amendment of the Sherman Anti-trust Law, to permit railroad participation in the business of carriers in parallel waterways, was advocated by Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican candidate for nomination for governor, in an address at the New York State Fair here today.

Ottinger also said the state barge canal should be maintained as a deterrent to floods, apart from the question of its commercial value.

"Speaking of the canal and our national waterways throughout the nation," said Ottinger, "it always seemed to me that they have not been given a fair chance owing to the curious provision of the Sherman Anti-trust Law, which forbids railroads from participating in the business of carriers in parallel waterways."

Ottinger confined his address largely to a review of his record in office, but in an interview predicted Hoover would receive one of the largest farm votes in the history of presidential elections.



Know Him By This Symbol

In every type of enterprise, commercial or professional, there are, of necessity, certain leaders.

In the business or profession concerned, these leaders are generally known and recognized, but frequently the public finds it hard to distinguish them.

The mortuary profession is no exception to this general rule. In the ranks of this ancient calling there are certain funeral directors who have proved themselves to be especially worthy of the trust and confidence of the public.

To distinguish these funeral directors from the others, the symbol you see pictured above was created, and it is being used throughout the country by funeral directors whose professional standards and business methods are of a certain predetermined excellence.

This symbol has therefore become a symbol of good faith; the mark by which the public may know a funeral director who may be relied upon to give comprehensive service, to advise wisely, and to charge a fair, reasonable price in keeping with the family means.

There is now a Golden Rule funeral director in this community. His announcement, incorporating this symbol, will appear within a short time in this paper, over his own business signature. The Order of the Golden Rule is proud to present and to recommend this firm to the people of this community and the surrounding territory.

Local "Centrals" Helped Rosendale

Miss Gertrude Lane, supervisor, and Miss Dorothy Fitzgerald, operator at the local office of the New York Telephone Company, worked at the switchboard of the Rosendale office while the flood was raging there Sunday night. The two Kingston girls did not leave their posts from Sunday night until about 7:30 o'clock this morning.

Miss Lane received a call for help to aid flood sufferers Sunday night and notified authorities. After completing her duty in this respect, the local operator considered that the switchboard operators in Rosendale would need help, so she immediately volunteered her services. She was able to procure Miss Fitzgerald to go with her and the two rendered valuable aid to the Rosendale operators.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

A regular meeting of Golden Sunset Lodge, No. 237, will be held tonight at Mechanics' Hall, 14 Henry street.

A regular meeting of the Fourth Degree Assembly, Knights of Columbus, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the K. of C. Home, corner of Broadway and Andrew street. It is requested that all members attend as final arrangements will be made for the annual clambake.

Boy Drowned While Swimming.

Deferiet, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—Ralph Laneue, 15 years old, of this village, drowned yesterday when he dove into the Black river near here while swimming. He failed to come to the surface. It was believed he struck a submerged object, stunning himself. A brother who was swimming with him went for help, but no trace of the boy was found until late last night, when his body was recovered.

Marbletown Fair and Supper.

The North Marbletown Church will hold its annual fair and supper at the church grounds on Wednesday evening, August 29. The supper menu will consist of boiled ham, potato salad, baked beans, pickles, tomatoes, cucumbers; cake and coffee, and will be served from six o'clock daylight saving time until all are served. If stormy the supper will be held the next fair evening.

Rondout Valley Flooded

...enty feet distant. Holding on ...nches of the trees to keep from ...ing swept down stream and ...ming every inch of the way, they ...y reached a point some distance ...m the mess hall where they found ...es which were more secure.

Mr. Cristman arrived in time to ...st in getting the boats in which ...e boys were huddled, over to the ...fer place.

Working in clothing soaking wet ...e three men made secure the line. ...ext a steel cable was attached ...om there and the three men drag...ed the heavy cable over and made ...t fast. Then came the work of ...aking the boat fast and attaching ...nes to have it back and forth. The ...ork up to this point had taken ...ours of dangerous work.

Cristman Brings Boys Across.

When the boat was secured Cristman made several trips across with ...e boys, all of whom were finally ...anded and taken in charge by willing hands who sought shelter for ...e boys.

After several hours of exhausting ...ork in the cold muddy water the ...sk of pulling the boat back and ...orth was a difficult one. Father O'Reilly and Sergeant Cunningham ...orked with almost superhuman ...trength to keep the boat moving. ...hen the last load was over, including Mr. and Mrs. Zeiner and their ...on and a pet sheep and dog, which ...ad been the camp mascots, Mr. ...eistman, Father O'Reilly and Ser...eant Cunningham abandoned their ...ost and came ashore. As they ...tepped on shore the crowd, which ...umbered several hundred, gave ...hem a warm hand and a cheer.

Water Sweeps Island 12 Feet.

When the island was abandoned ...he mess hall was in the water to the ...oof. It is estimated that the water ...ad risen fully 32 feet in less than ...0 hours and was sweeping the is...and fully 12 feet in depth.

Ray Quick of High Falls as well ...s the members of the fire depart...ent and a number of the residents ...f Rosendale assisted in the rescue ...ork.

Rosendale Village Isolated.

While the rescue at Camp Henry ...as in progress word came from ...osendale village, which was rapidly ...oeing flooded, that several residents ...ere calling for help. The water ...overed the main village street to a ...epth of several feet and entirely ...ut off the village from Kingston, ...nd between Rosendale and High ...alls the roadway was also covered ...ith several feet of water.

Chief Murphy, who was in charge ...f the firemen who assisted in the ...escue of the boys at Camp Henry, ...ispatched a boat to the assistance ...f the villagers. Although the ...ater reached a considerable depth ...n the village, there was apparently ...o immediate danger. Shortly after ...aylight the water began to come ...p very slowly and at 6 o'clock, al...hough the water had not dropped, ...t appeared to be about stationary ...nd it was believed the peak of the ...lood was past.

The highway at Eddyville was ...overed and traffic was unable to ...se the road.

A camp lower down the Rondout ...reek from the Naval Militia camp ...as reported as flooded but all of ...he boys had been taken from the ...anger zone before the water cut ...hem off.

At Accord the Rondout creek ...early this morning was reported ...within two feet of the Accord bridge ...looring.

Hear Flood Roar at Stone Ridge.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this morn...ing the water was roaring over ...High Falls with a noise that could ...e plainly heard on the Ellenville-...Kingston highway at Stone Ridge ...and the water was extremely high ...under the High Falls bridge but ...there was no danger of the bridge ...being flooded.

On the Stone Ridge-Ashokan ...boulevard road several bridges were ...washed out.

Autos Stalled Near Stony Hollow.

Sunday evening about 9 o'clock ...water rushing down the valley at ...Stony Hollow flooded the highway to ...a depth of nearly a foot just south ...of the junction of the north and ...south boulevard. Several cars were ...stalled in the water which rushed ...across the highway for a distance ...of several hundred feet. Near the ...site of the old Humphrey hotel on ...the Plank road, which was destroyed ...by fire some time ago, the water ...flooded the highway.

Rescue Agent With Rope.

The O. & W. station agent at ...Napanoch had an exciting time on ...Sunday when the station was flooded ...to a depth of from seven to eight ...feet and it was necessary to haul the ...agent to safety with a rope.

This morning the railroad tracks ...at Napanoch were reported under ...water to a depth of from seven to ...eight feet.

The main streets in Kerhonkson ...and Accord are also under water.

City Officials Offer Services

This morning Mayor E. J. Dempsey, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and Dr. E. H. Loughran, health officer, motored to Rosendale and offered the village authorities any assistance that they might need, but the offer was declined with thanks. The boys rescued from the island in the Rondout creek at Rosendale are all being cared for in a big boarding house in the village. The city officials returned shortly after noon and report that the water has subsided to a considerable extent in Rosendale.

Picnic Postponed.

The picnic of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church which was scheduled to be held on Tuesday at Glenerie Park has been postponed until Wednesday, owing to the bad condition of the roads.

Bulkhead Held At Eddyville

Both Gates in Guard Lock at Eddyville Smashed but Bulkhead Held and Kept Back Flood From Sweeping Lower Valley.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Feldman, who lives near the guard lock at Eddyville, reported today that after watching the guard lock all night, all danger from it giving way is now apparently past and that before noon the water had fallen fully two feet. It was twelve feet above normal during the night.

Both gates in the lock were smashed by the tremendous pressure of water from the flood, according to Mr. Feldman, but the old bulkhead, which is built of timber, held firm. It was that fact that undoubtedly prevented flood conditions in the lower Rondout creek.

Deputy Sheriff Feldman was assigned to duty at the guard lock during the night by Sheriff Rice, and remained on duty until all danger of it giving way had past.

Last Concert by Excelsior Band

The last concert to be furnished by the Excelsior Hose Concert Band will be given in the rear of the Kingston High School Tuesday, from 8 to 10:30 p. m. During the program, which will last one-half hour longer than usual, a number of classical and popular pieces will be rendered. Director Jules Moss promises that the closing concert will be a pleasing one. It is expected that a large audience will hear the band provided weather conditions are favorable.

Common Council Will Not Meet

As the railroad committee was not ready to report today on the application of the Kingston Transportation Company to substitute busses for trolley cars in Kingston, the adjourned meeting of the common council slated for this evening has been called off. The bus proposition will be submitted at the regular monthly meeting of the council in September.

MRS. COHAN, FAMOUS ACTRESS, DIES AT MONROE.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Costigan Cohan, mother of George M. Cohan, and herself an actress for many years, died last night at her home in Monroe, N. Y. She was 74.

Mrs. Cohan, her husband, Jeremiah J. Cohan; their daughter, the late Josephine Cohan, and their son, George M., played successfully for years as "The Four Cohans".

She is survived only by her son, who with his wife and a niece was with her when she died.

The plays for which Mrs. Cohan and her husband are perhaps best remembered are "The Governor's Son" and "Running for Office".

After the marriage of Josephine to Fred Niblo, actor and motion picture director, breaking up the Four Cohan partnership, the parents continued to appear with their son. He had by that time, however, become more famous than they and they were content to let him present them under the billing "George M. Cohan and Company".

Josephine died July 12, 1916, and a little over a year later Jere Cohan died at the home in Monroe.

The Cohans are said to be descended from a west of Ireland harper named O'Coamhan, the first American ancestor being the grandfather of Jere who migrated to this country and settled in Providence, R. I. It was there Jere Cohan and Helen Costigan met and were married.

RESERVATIONS FOR ELKS' ANNUAL CLAMBAKE

The several hundred members of Kingston Lodge, No. 550, are awaiting with joyous anticipation for the annual clambake of the Elks to be held at Walton's Grove, Lucas avenue, on Sunday, September 9. There will be one bake only which opens at 3 p. m. Walton's Grove is located two miles from Kingston near Lucas avenue, being near the first turn to the left beyond the Four Corners. Starting at 10 a. m. clam broth, raw clams, clam fritters and hard crabs will be served continuously. On request of members it has been decided to allow each member to invite one guest provided the guest accompany the member. A charge will be made for service which includes everything and reservations for the bake must be made on or before Labor Day, Monday, September 3, to C. J. Mullen, treasurer, personally or by mail to him at the Elks' club.

THREE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS SUNDAY

Rochester, Aug. 27 (AP).—Two men and a boy were killed in automobile accidents in western New York reported today.

The dead:

James Derrick, 70, Canisteo.

Hugh Mackerchar, Jr., 6, Rochester.

Peter L. Cook, 42, Rochester.

Derrick received fatal injuries when an automobile in which he was riding left the highway near Wellsville, ploughed 100 feet through a hayfield and struck a tree.

The Mackerchar boy died soon after his father's automobile overturned at Scottville.

Cook was instantly killed when his roadster hurtled from Lewiston avenue in this city and overturned three times in a field.

'GOOD HINTS ON PREPARING CAR

Mechanical Condition of Car Plays Big Part in Pleasure to Be Had.

Motor touring, the summer pastime of millions, is pleasant directly in proportion to the manner in which the car performs, says a statement issued by national headquarters of the American Automobile association, which will serve a vast majority of the 44,000,000 who will take their annual vacations this year on the open road.

"The close relationship between the pleasure of the tour and the condition of the car should suggest to every prospective tourist the wisdom of seeing that the car is performing at its best before the trip begins," says the statement. "The need is one that is ignored by many motorists until it is brought forcibly to their attention by mechanical trouble with its attendant expense and delay."

More Heed to Details.

In preparing the car for the much different conditions it will encounter on a touring trip, the owner need envision no great outlay of money for an exhaustive overhaul, says the statement. Rather, it points out, the process is one of paying a little more heed to the principal details that mark ordinarily good car care.

Battery, generator, distributor, spark plugs, valves, carburetor, fuel feed system, clutch, transmission, differential, crankcase lubricant, oil filter, steering mechanism, brakes, tires, cooling system and wheel bearings are the units chiefly recommended by the A. A. A. emergency road service experts for attention on the eve of the tour. Summarizing the probable services that each will need, the statement says:

"Battery—Remove corrosion from terminals and inspect connections to see that they have not been eaten by the acid. Replace suspected connections. Coat terminals with vaseline or grease. Fill cells to recommended level with distilled water.

Care of Generator.

"Generator—If device is not automatically controlled as to output, have charging rate reduced for the tour. It dimishes the load on the generator, while turning on the lights serves no other purpose than to keep the battery from becoming overcharged, which is not so likely as generally believed.

"Distributor—Clean and adjust breaker points. Apply a thin film of grease to the cam.

"Spark plugs—Clean and check points for condition and clearance. Replacement, if the plugs have seen a year's service, is generally advisable.

"Valves—It will pay to have the valves ground if this has not been done for 7,500 miles, regardless of the gasoline one uses. Valves must seat properly for efficient engine performance. For the tour, it is not wise to adjust them too closely. This means quick valve deterioration and poor performance. Look sharply for burned exhaust valves during the grinding process."

Three Kinds of "Pests" Are Always Dangerous

Thomas H. Freebody, vice president of a western motor truck association, enumerates three kinds of automotive "pests" that to him and many others are obnoxious and dangerous on our streets.

First, says Freebody, is the "show-off," who wants to let the world know he's driving a flashy roadster and has lost his manners in doing so.

Second, there's the employed driver who wants to get to his destination in a hurry and has no consideration for others. His horn blowing is more to exert abuse to the injured party than to himself.

Lastly, there is the nervous driver, who Freebody believes is most dangerous of all. He toots his horn at all times, whenever his imagination gets the worst of him.

Coolness and restraint are essentials for good driving. Nervousness suggests a fear complex which, if pushed too far on the highway, may be taken up by others like a fast-spreading disease.

A slight touch of the horn button is enough to let the fellow ahead know you want to pass. No end of blowing will get you ahead, however, if the traffic is heavy.

The best that can be done when traffic is heavy is to ride along with it. Hornblowing is useless and troublesome.

Weights and Pulleys to Open the Garage Doors

When you come back from a drive it is a nuisance to have to get out, unlock and open the garage doors, climb back in the car, and drive in. A novel and ingenious way to arrange self-opening garage doors, and details of construction are given in the illustration. Instead of stopping the car you reach out and pull the end of cord placed conveniently near the driveway and some distance from the garage doors. The doors at once swing open and you continue into the garage.

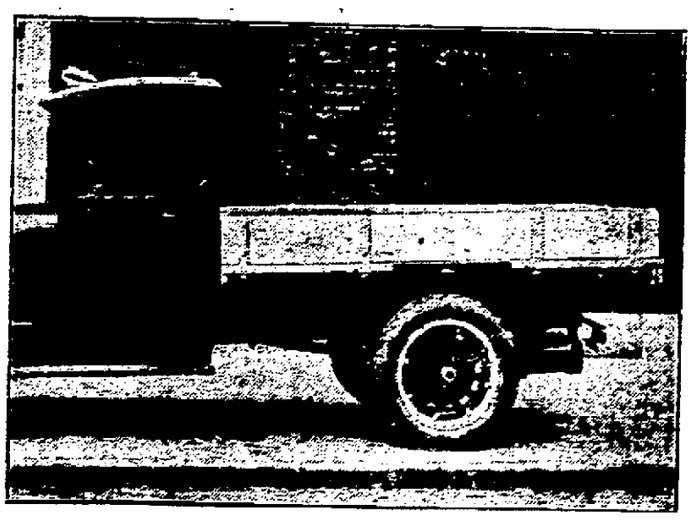
The secret lies in the peculiar leverage that translates the downward pull of two weights into effective opening pulls on the doors. Note that the point of attachment for the end of the cord is on the end of wooden frame so that as the door swings outward the point of attachment moves to let the weight go downward. The illustration shows the release latch which should, of course, be fitted to the door which has a bead to keep the other door closed.—Popular Science Monthly.

Hot Water Is Injurious on Varnished Surfaces

Is hot water good for the surface of the car? It is not, according to American Motorist, which goes on to say:

Hot water has a markedly deteriorating effect on the varnished surface of a well-finished automobile body. Tepid water is ideal, although cool water may be used without harm. After the car has been properly washed and wiped with chamois it is time well spent to go over it thoroughly with a high-grade automobile or piano polish. Use good grade cheesecloth and be sure to rub until the last trace of wet polish has been removed as a film of polish left on the surface of the car quickly collects a heavy coating of dust.

MOTOR TRUCK'S LOAD-CARRYING ABILITY



It is estimated that during 1928 probably from 25 per cent to 35 per cent of all motor trucks sold will be put on farms. This indicates the farmer's appreciation of the motor truck's load-carrying ability.

Motor trucks are used to carry almost every conceivable agricultural commodity. They carry the farm products to town, they bring back groceries, feeds, fertilizers, equipment, etc., says the Illinois Farmer. They do this work rapidly and expeditiously in a fraction of the time that is required with other forms of power.

The motor truck is an essential piece of farm operating equipment because it enables the farmer to do his work faster, do his hauling cheaper and to reach markets which heretofore have not been available to him.

Overpower Watchmen, Get $25,000.

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP).—Four safe robbers overpowered two watchmen of a Sears, Roebuck and Company retail store early today and escaped with between $25,000 and $30,000 in cash after blasting open a safe.

Barge Canal Traffic Resumed.

Middleport, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—Traffic on the barge canal, interrupted Saturday night when a barge loaded with wheat sank after crashing into the spillway here, was resumed today with the reloading of the barge.

Poincare and Stresemann Meet

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—Premier Poincare of France and Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany met this morning for a long-heralded and much-discussed interview. They spent an hour and 20 minutes together and the German foreign minister's coming and going was attended with all the pomp and circumstance of European diplomatic ritual.

The meeting had been looked forward to as a momentous event and a signal for the opening of negotiations concerning the withdrawal of French troops from the Rhineland and the revision of reparations, but all official sources later stated that there would be no such discussion at this time.

Today's interview was the first official reception to a German foreign minister since the War of 1870 and therefore it took on unusual significance.

There was something of the show of the old French court receptions when Dr. Stresemann, in his closed car, drew up at the finance ministry. A crowd cheered.

Dr. Stresemann ascended the grand staircase in the Louvre preceded by footmen in knee breeches and white stockings and when he left they marched down ahead of him and stood at attention while he re-entered his car and drove swiftly away. He again was cheered warmly and photographed thoroughly as he left.

There was a sudden alarm during the meeting when Dr. Stresemann's physician, Prof. Zondeck, arrived hurriedly and went upstairs. He came down soon, however, and explained that he had not been sent for, but was merely anxious to see that Dr. Stresemann was all right.

DEMOCRAT SAYS PEOPLE HAVE CONFIDENCE IN SMITH

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Nelson Kelly of Fargo, N. D., Democratic national committeeman, called at the party's headquarters here today to report on the situation in his state.

"Our people feel," he said, "that during the last eight years Mr. Hoover has had many opportunities to do something in behalf of agriculture. Yet he has neither lifted hand nor voice for them. Under these conditions we feel in the northwest that we could not rely on Mr. Hoover as president to find the solution of our problems. On the other hand, we have confidence in Governor Smith."

TUNNEY RECEIVES GIFT OF BLACKTHORN

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 27 (AP).—Gene Tunney left Dublin for London this morning after a visit to the land of his ancestors.

Director-General Walsh of the Tailteann Games presented the former champion with a gold mounted Irish blackthorn which Gene accepted as he laughingly said:

"Now I will have something to protect myself."

He told his hosts that he had had a wonderful time in Ireland.

RAILWAY EXCURSION TO NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 16.

An excursion to New York city will be sponsored by the New York, Ontario & Western Railway Sunday, September 16. Special round trip rates will prevail for the excursion, which will enable passengers to visit points of interest in New York. Tickets will be sold on the train to passengers who board the excursion at stations where agents are not on duty.

MOTHER-IN-LAW OF MAYOR WALKER DEAD

Clinton, Iowa, Aug. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Etta Travel Allen, mother of Mrs. James Walker, wife of the mayor of New York city, died this morning.

Mrs. Walker has been with her mother since a few days after she became ill several weeks ago.

Mayor Walker will arrive this afternoon.

Levine Flies to Brussels.

Croydon, Eng., Aug. 27 (AP).—Charles A. Levine flew his new Junker plane "Queen of the Air" to Brussels today to get a new wheel to replace one broken this morning when he landed after a test flight. A temporary wheel enabled him to make the takeoff for Brussels. He is expected to return tonight. In anticipation of Levine's takeoff for America, a special runway, a mile in length, is being constructed at the airdrome.

V. F. W. Encampment Opens.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 27 (AP).—The first business meeting of the twenty-ninth annual national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars opened here this morning with a joint session of delegates to the encampment and the ladies' auxiliary. Separate business meetings were to be held this afternoon.

A reception to national officers and drill team contests will be held tonight.

Charged With Grand Larceny.

Walter Appell was taken into custody on Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Constable in New York city, and placed in Ulster county jail. Appell was arrested on a warrant charging him with grand larceny at East Kingston in purloining a check for $250. He will be arraigned before Judge Jennings at Lake Katrine, town of Ulster.

Local Dancers Win Prizes.

Francis Kearney and Miss Marie Brown of this city took first prize in the combination dance contest at Woodcliff Park, Poughkeepsie, Friday night. Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy of Kingston were fourth prize winners. The contest was conducted by the National Dancing Masters' Association.

Briand Did Not Doubt Success

(By Aristide Briand, French Minister of Foreign Affairs.)

Paris, Aug. 27 (AP).—It has been a year and a half since, in a message conveyed through the Associated Press, I let fall this fragile germ of a suggestion sufficiently discreet, anticipating nothing more than the spontaneous sympathy of the American people.

History already testified to what care was taken to safeguard the seed and make it grow. I know how much one may expect from the qualities of the American soil, which yields an hundredfold for the grain confided to it. The harvest has not deceived my hopes which have become those of the whole world.

I have never doubted for a single instant that the American people only awaited their hour to manifest in a new form the natural attachment they have always had for the cause of peace. I felicitate myself today this brilliant manifestation permits us to measure how much unselfishness Franco-American friendship can bring to the world, the two great nations, faithful to the same traditions of liberalism, acting together for peace today as they did in other days for liberty, find themselves closely united in the same aspiration, in the brith of all great movements of human spirit."

State Fair Now Open at Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—With a civic half-holiday declared in honor of the event, the 85th annual New York State Fair opened today with the first day dedicated to the city in which it is held. A grand circuit racing program has been arranged for the six days of the fair week.

Foremost among the opening day events was the Hambletonian Stake carrying a value of $66,726 and with a purse of $40,549 for the winner. Ten three-year-olds have been entered. The first race was scheduled for 2:40 o'clock this afternoon.

Honor guests of the day included Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman transatlantic flier; Ray Barbuti, Olympic champion, and Attorney General Albert Ottinger. Mr. Ottinger was schedule to speak at noon.

More than 1,000 dairy and beef cattle were entered. Hundreds of other exhibits, farm and industrial covered several acres of ground.

Tomorrow Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential candidate, will be the honor guest. Thursday, Governor's Day, will be honored with the presence of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate.

"BAD BOY" MAYOR TURNS TABLES ON COMPLAINANT

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP).—Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, "Bad Boy" mayor of Newburyport, appeared in district court again today, this time on the side of the law. The mayor, who was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,140 and to serve 330 days in jail for operating a gasoline station without a permit, brought a complaint against Edward Coffin, who last week brought the complaints against "Bossy."

Today the mayor charged Coffin with reckless driving. After the hearing the testimony of two street laborers, Judge Nathaniel N. Jones fined Coffin $50 and then suspended the sentence for two years.

"If that was me," said the mayor, "he wouldn't suspend the sentence two minutes, but never mind. I'll go to Registrar Parker."

MISSING MINISTER WORKING AS LABORER

Medicine Hat, Alta., Aug. 27 (AP)—The "mysterious disappearance" of the Rev. Franklin Hutchinson from his home in Doddinghurst, Essex, England, has been solved.

With a party of 22 harvest hands recently sent over from England, the Rev. Mr. Hutchinson is working as a field laborer on a farm near Brooks, Alta. The party regard him as their leader. He is here to study farm condition and to make a survey of education matters and feels that the furore over his "disappearance" is a "mountain made out of a mole hill."

The minister said he resigned his church office before leaving England, that his plans were known to his bishop and the secretary of his religious division and that he had made no effort to keep his identity secret.

MASS IN THANKSGIVING FOR SIGNING OF TREATY

London, Aug. 27 (AP).—Solemn high Mass in thanksgiving for the signing of the Kellogg-Briand pact was sung in Westminster Cathedral this morning.

Official representatives of Canada, the Irish Free State, India and the Union of South Africa were in the congregation.

Game Postponed.

Nerve Required By Speed Demons

Did it ever occur to you the nerve a man must have to enter races in this day and age, when competition in the various makes of machines is so keen? Take for instance the rate of speed that Frank Lockhart attained at the time he was killed last winter in Florida, going at the terrific rate of speed of one hundred and thirty miles per hour. Lockhart was contracted with the Universal Auto Racing Association for the races this fall. The Universal is holding one of the New York state race meets at the Kingston Driving Park, Labor Day, September 3, and from the list of entries already entered it will be mighty fast company. Two of the world's fastest drivers will enter the race here on Labor Day, Ralph De Palma and Bob Robinson, and the rivalry that exists between these two drivers is none to friendly. Both drivers this season are driving new cars, DePalma a Miller eight and Robinson a Dusenberg special. They will meet in competition for the first time with their new cars at Toronto this week at the fair and will come direct from Toronto to Kingston to race on Labor Day.

In addition to these two famous speedsters there will be other drivers of national reputation such as Bill Hoffman, Douglas Wallace, George Genung, Al Aspin, Frank Farmer, Herman Schurch and many others, as the entries are coming in every day from various parts of the country. The Labor Day races are sanctioned by the American Automobile Association, and are open to all comers who can furnish cars that can qualify and who are registered three A drivers. In racing with the sanction of the three A's, there are certain requirements that a driver must come up to, also his car. There will be a representative of the Association here on Labor Day to supervise the races and pass on all entries, and it is this man's duty to not only pass on the entries but he must also furnish certain protection for the drivers' safety, such as the preparation of the track the day of the races and the day before. Calcium chloride is used on the track to keep th dust down, also other chemicals to make the track fast.

From every report and from advance arrangements that are being made a record crowd will be on hand to witness what is heralded to be the greatest auto racing meet ever held in this part of the state. Reservations are coming into the Chamber of Commerce office in every mail from distant parts of the state. Anyone desiring to secure tickets in advance may do so by mailing that amount to the Chamber of Commerce and tickets will be mailed to those waiting for them.

Tickets can also be secured at Chevrolet Company, Cohen's Clothing Store, Studebaker Agency, and Walker's Drug Store.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Rayon Institute has been incorporated as a permanent institution, known as the Rayon Institute of America, Inc. Chester Bassett of The Viscose Co., has been named president of the board of directors, and R. E. T. Hall of the Dupont Rayon Co., vice president. The work will be carried on under the direction of Ernest L. Starr, who has had charge of the promotional work since last December.

Rolling mills in the Youngstown district are operating at more than 80 per cent of capacity. Of 53 independent open hearth furnaces, 44 are melting; of 127 sheet mills, 107 are under power, and 14 of 20 tube mills are operating.

Fisher's wholesale commodity price index in the week ended August 24 was 99.9 compared to 100.1 in the previous week.

California Crude Oil production last week averaged 632,500 barrels daily, compared with 637,500 in the previous week.

Formation of the American Institute of Industrial Co-ordination, under the leadership of Manny Strauss, financier and advisor to industrial corporations, has been announced. Its immediate aims will be "to solve the serious unemployment problem, to do away with profitless prosperity and to remove legal barriers to the natural expansion of business."

The United States Air Transport, Inc., operating between New York and Washington, tomorrow will offer through Billings Ward and Co., 50,000 shares of common stock at $12.50 per share to finance the purchase of tri-motored ships carrying from 12 to 16 passengers each. The airline proposes to augment its present service to include Norfolk, Va., Philadelphia and Atlantic City. The expansion program calls for flying fields at Baltimore, Harrisburg, New Market, Va., and Luray Caverns, Va.

BRIGGS' WEEK-END PARTY

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

BRIGGS excelled as a publicity agent—for himself. His particular section of the world was never kept long in ignorance of his wonderful achievements. Briggs was the junior member of the law firm of Adair, Townsend & Briggs, but after listening for five consecutive minutes to Briggs you wondered of what possible use the other two members were, since, according to Briggs himself—surely the best authority—he conducted virtually all the business and won practically all the suits handled by the firm.

But Briggs was still young, and in some particulars not half bad, so his senior partners tolerated his inordinate self-conceit and hoped he would outgrow it.

The office force was not so charitable. "Dead in love with himself and hasn't any rivals," was the picturesque way they were wont to describe Briggs. And after a little while it penetrated even Briggs' rather rhinocerine epidermis that he wasn't rated above par by the pretty stenographer, that the switchboard operator never took the trouble to give him the prompt service she gave his associates, and that even the office boy showed little alacrity in answering his calls. Now men like Briggs can no more live without admiration than a fish can live out of water. He began to wonder how he could purchase a substantial chunk of popularity from his office force, so that they would regard him with the respect and reverence they accorded the other members of the firm.

About that time, most opportunely, it seemed, a spinster aunt of Briggs' died and left him a well-stocked fruit farm. It was the season when fruit was superabundant, and one couldn't sell or even give away the abundant supply produced. Briggs reasoned that here was a rather cheap way to win the hearts or at least the gratitude of his office force, and straightway he electrified them by inviting them one and all to a week-end party at his farm for the next Saturday and Sunday, the boat to leave the dock Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The reaction from the office boy to chief clerk was immediate. The pretty stenographer bestowed on Briggs her sunniest smiles, the switchboard operator gave his calls precedence over everybody else, and the office boy looked at him with a very good imitation of respect. Briggs reveled in his newly acquired popularity as a butterfly basks in the August sunshine.

How he gloated over his partners from that time until Saturday. "Going to get the office family together in a week-end party; that's the way to promote esprit de corps; that's the stunt to increase efficiency. Queer you fellows haven't thought of it before. Just wait and see the results."

The trip across the lake was a pronounced success. The eight young folks who "made the wheels go round" at the offices of Adair, Townsend & Briggs, properly chaperoned by Mrs. Robius, the senior member's private secretary, reached the other side in high spirits. A short bus ride brought them to Briggs' farm, and that gentleman, beaming like a mammoth sunflower, met them and played the host in most approved fashion. If their was anything lacking in the menu nobody felt inclined to criticize, for with a sweep of his arms Briggs called attention to the heavily laden apple, peach, plum and pear trees. "The fare I offer you at the table may be simple but take your dessert right from the trees eat all you can, and carry the rest home." Literally they prepared to obey his word. All day Sunday when they weren't sleeping they were eating. They would tackle the luscious peaches on one tree, then take a nap; then attack the plums and rest, finishing off with pears and apples. Late Sunday afternoon, after extravagant words of gratitude to their host, they departed for the deck and boarded the boat bound for the city. All went merry as a marriage bell until they were about half way across, then the wind worked itself into a frenzy, and tore around like a hundred madmen. The boat tried to stand first on one end and then the other, and a crowd of miserable human beings vowed never again to trust themselves upon the treacherous waters of Lake Michigan.

Surfeited with good things as Briggs' week-end guests had been, their digestive apparatus rebelled violently and they were soon experiencing heights and depths of misery known only to those afflicted with mal de mer. When the boat docked at 5 a. m. Monday morning a wretched, wild-eyed, forlorn party of eight wended their ways to their respective homes to prepare as best they could for the busy Monday at the offices of Adair, Townsend & Briggs.

If ever there had been a morning when all the members of the office force needed to be alert and 100 per cent efficient it was that particular Monday. Matters of immense moment were pending that day. A big lumber concern, with offices in half a dozen cities, was seriously considering retaining the firm of Adair, Townsend & Briggs as its attorneys and members of its directorate were that morning coming for an important conference, it was believed, to test the desirability of the firm as their permanent legal counsel.

The two senior members were on hand early, ready for the interview. Usually upon their arrival they found all the office force in their places, busily at work. Not so this morning. Not a soul was to be seen. The senior member indulged in violent language. The second member paced the floor and wondered in stentorian tones what in the name of the seven seas had happened. Suddenly the door opened and one by one the eight pale-faced, heavy-eyed individuals crept guiltily to their desks. "What in thunder is the matter with you all?" inquired Townsend, as he viewed with growing wrath what he had often boasted was the finest looking, most efficient office force to be found. As the wan and weary-looking switchboard operator dropped into her chair she murmured, "Week-end party, Mr. Briggs, storm on lake, seasick. Oh, my soul!" and laid her bobbed head upon the desk and wept.

A half hour later Briggs, well groomed as always, jaunty and self-satisfied, walked into the office, having motored around the lake in his own car. He entered with the mien of a man who expects and deserves an ovation, but his merry greeting died on his lips as he viewed the scene. "Fine demonstration of efficiency you've staged for us," thundered the senior member. "Lumber outfit will be here in ten minutes. Pretty lot of assistants we've got to help us on this strenuous morning."

That a night on the stormy deep does not fit one for accurate alert service was proved a dozen times in the following hectic hours, when a leaden-eyed and languid stenographer for the first time in her experience failed to decipher her notes; when a wan, just-about-to faint switchboard operator tangled up the lumber men's phone calls until they were desperate and a panic-stricken office boy couldn't be made to get an order through his head.

When before the end of a two-hours' conference the lumber magnates took their departure with very evident dissatisfaction and no inclination to adjourn the session to some later date there was slamming of doors and the three members of the firm were closeted in the private office of the head. As the office force held its individual and collective breath there floated through the keyhole and transom in the strident, sarcastic voice of the senior member, "Pretty expensive week-end party you've given us, Briggs. Note it on our books as costing about half a million—what in the end the business of that lumber company would have brought us.

"The next time, Briggs," and the senior partner's voice rose to a wild crescendo that sent shivers down the spine of the pretty stenographer, "the next time you plan a social function to promote efficiency and create esprit de corps in the office force of this firm, please consult us and we'll arrange to hire the ballroom of a hotel and engage the symphony orchestra to play for a dance. It will be cheaper than a trip across the lake for a week-end party."

Man Has Found Many Uses for the Nutmeg

The nutmeg tree is one of the most useful trees in the tropic forests. An ordinary tree will yield from 1,000 to 10,000 nuts in a year. All parts of the fruit are in demand for culinary purposes. In Singapore the natives salt the husks, and in drink saloons they are supplied for the purpose of creating thirst. A delicious preserve is also prepared from the husks. The nutmeg is employed in medicine as a carminative stimulant, and fat from the nut—the so-called nutmeg butter—is used as an application for rheumatism. It contains from 3 to 8 per cent of a volatile oil, and the substance myristicin, which possesses narcotic properties. Cases of poisoning as a result of chewing nutmegs have been recorded—a single nutmeg seriously affecting the cerebral functions of man.

The Fjords

In summer the fjords glitter with golden sunshine: purple and green shadows from the mountains lie on them. These may be more lovely than the faint light of winter moons and the snowy pictures of frozen peaks which show on their surface. But before day is half over, out come the stars—the glorious stars which shine like nothing that we have ever seen. There, the planets cast a faint shadow as the moon does with us; and these planets and the constellations, as they silently glide from peak to peak of the rocky passes, are imaged on the waters so clearly that the fisherman, as he unmoors his boat for his evening task, feels as though he were about to shoot forth his vessel into another heaven, and to cleave his way among the stars.—Harriet Martineau.

Echo and the Sea

Up to three years ago, when the wire lead apparatus was still being used to ascertain ocean depths, five miles was the greatest depth which had been accurately reported. By the use of the echo-sounding apparatus, however, there is no limit to the depths which can be plumbed, and in the Eastern archipelago depths of seven and eight miles have recently been sounded by the German survey ship Emden.

Hand-Made Furniture

In the village of Chalford, Eng., a group of craftsmen are making furniture every bit of which is hand made, even the nails. The endeavor is to turn out the most beautiful furniture produced in the Twentieth century.

HOMEMADE PEACH ICE CREAM POPULAR

Time to Take the Dasher Out.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Time to take the dasher out of the ice cream freezer—and be rewarded by a first taste of the product you have helped to churn! Evidently these children, like all others, believe there never was a more blissful moment in the summer time than this. What extraordinary sharp ears the neighborhood youngsters develop when there's ice cream being made on anybody's back porch! They flock around so hopefully, all eager to help, on the chance of even a small sample of the delectable contents of the freezer.

Here's a recipe from the bureau of home economics for that most popular of all homemade ice creams—fresh peach. In some parts of the country you can make it as early as July and in others as late as October, depending on the state of the peach crop:

Peach Ice Cream.

2 cups single cream	½ teaspoon salt
2 cups soft cut peaches	½ to 1 tablespoon lemon juice, depending on acidity of peaches
1 cup sugar

Wash and pare the peaches, cut them in small pieces, cover with the sugar and let them stand for a short while. Press the fruit through a colander, so that a pulp is formed. Add the salt, cream, and the lemon juice if needed. Use a freezing mixture of one part salt and four to six parts of ice. Turn the crank of the freezer slowly. After freezing remove the dasher, pack the freezer with more ice and salt and let the cream stand for an hour or more to ripen.

COTTON FABRICS USED FOR DRESS

Attractive Garment Designed for Hot Weather.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Any of the firmly woven printed cotton fabrics might be used for this attractive dress for a hot day, designed by the bureau of home economics. The material used was a soft English print, but zephyr, percale, lawn, or broadcloth, all of which are made in delightful printed patterns, would give good results. The collar line is round and low enough for warm weather. It is finished with a binding of the same plain material as the tie, and matching one of the colors in the prints. The set-in sleeves are short for comfort, but not extreme. The cuffs and belt are also bound like the neck.

Front fullness in the waist is made by a yoke of little tucks. Below the low waistline four plaits give ample width to the skirt. The long flat tie and large pearl belt buttons give a touch of tailored trimness.

Soup Without Meat Stock Made From Vegetables

Soup without meat stock can be made from vegetables and rice water, with meat flavor supplied by salt pork. Those who cook rice frequently will often have on hand a sufficient amount of the water that has been drained from it to make this good soup. The bureau of home economics describes the method of making it:

1 pint rice water	½ cup finely chopped celery tops
1 cup milk	1 rounded tbs. salt pork, diced very small
2 carrots, medium size, grated
2 tbs. butter
1 onion, chopped fine

Cook the salt pork in a skillet until very crisp and then remove it. Add the butter to the pork fat and then the onions, celery tops, and carrots and cook for 5 minutes, stirring to keep them from becoming too brown. Heat the rice water and milk in a saucepan and stir in the cooked vegetables. Season with salt and a small amount of pepper. Allow the soup to stand for an hour or more to blend. Reheat and, just before serving, add the crisped pork.

Nut Biscuits Make Treat for Luncheon or Supper

An easily made treat for luncheon or supper, in combination with preserves or cream cheese or both, is nut biscuits. These are ideal if served hot, but you will find that any left-over biscuits will not go begging, if your household includes one or two active boys who come around in the middle of the afternoon or at the end of a game of tennis or baseball, looking for a little extra snack to restore the energy they have given out. Make some, too, for the picnic lunch. The directions are from the bureau of home economics.

2 cups sifted soft-wheat flour	1 tablespoon fat
4 teaspoons baking powder	½ cup ground nuts
¾ teaspoon salt	⅔ cup milk, or enough for soft dough

Sift the dry ingredients and cut in the fat and nuts. Add the milk and stir from the center with a fork, until a soft dough is formed. Toss the dough on a lightly floured board, and press into a sheet about one-fourth inch thick with the palm of the hand. Cut in small rounds, brush the top with butter, and place one round over the other. Bake in a quick oven until lightly brown. Serve hot with marmalade or cheese and jelly.

Valuable Minerals Are Contained in Spinach

Spinach should always be cooked as little as possible, so that its vitamines will not be destroyed. All the liquid that cooks out of the leaves should be saved and served, for in it are dissolved some of the valuable minerals which the spinach contributes to the diet. Everyone is familiar with the story of the little boy who was sure he could "taste the iron" in his spinach, so it was scarcely necessary to warn the good cook to wash spinach thoroughly, through five or six waters. Lifting it each time from the surface of the pan so that any grit will sink. Cut off the roots before the first washing because considerable grit is held at the base of the stems. The bureau of home economics gives these directions for cooking spinach:

Wash the spinach through many waters and when all grit has been removed, drain well and chop the spinach very fine. To each pound of spinach melt in a saucepan three or four tablespoonfuls of butter and when lightly browned add the spinach. Cover the pan a few minutes until the spinach has wilted, then remove the cover, add the salt and cook for eight or ten minutes, stirring frequently. For children, serve on crisp toast to conserve the liquid.

Broiled Liver Is Most Excellent for Change

Liver need not always be fried. One of the best ways of cooking any kind of liver—beef, calf, lamb, or hog liver—according to the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture—is to broil it under the flame of a gas oven. For a family of six, buy about a pound and a half of liver, cut in slices a quarter of an inch thick. Wipe the slices with a damp cloth. Place them on a greased baking sheet and put it under the flame of the broiling oven. Cook from eight to ten minutes, turning frequently. When done, sprinkle with salt and pepper, pour over it some melted butter, and serve at once. Good vegetables to serve with broiled liver are: baked onions, baked tomatoes, green peppers stuffed with an onion, tomato and bread crumb mixture, spinach, kale, or cabbage.

"WOT DO YA THINK YA DOIN', ROGER?"
"RESTIN' ME PUPPIES!"

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

OUR "HOT CHOCOLATE"

"A HOT chocolate, please!" The most popular beverage the soda fountain has to offer, cocoa has come to be regarded as an American institution; that is, we never give a thought to whence it came, or where. And the lover of the "hot chocolate" should visit Cuba or the West Indies and order a cup of his favorite drink. There he will find the original and real "hot chocolate," prepared so thick that one cannot actually drink it, but must eat it with a spoon. For that is how cocoa is drunk by the natives of tropical America, where it had its origin.

It is to Christopher Columbus, returning to Spain after his first trip to the West Indies, that we owe the knowledge and the use of cocoa or chocolate, which was introduced by him into Europe and thence to civilized America. Landing on the shores of the West Indies he had found the natives drinking the chocolate beverage, and among the souvenirs with which he returned from the new world were some cocoa or, properly, "cacao" beans, from which is produced cocoa and eating chocolate.

It is interesting to note that the most important species of the cacao tree is called the "Theobroma," which is Greek for "food of the gods."

SAWS

By Viola Brothers Shore

FOR THE GOOSE—

A BRAVE act don't always mean that a man is brave any more than a chaste life necessarily means a woman is virtuous.

The woman that's hankerin' to leave a husband or a job can find plenty o' things the matter with them.

A woman's mouth and her heart is close neighbors; but they often ain't got much in common.

It might be hard hidin' love when it exists. But not near as hard as pretendin' it when it don't.

FOR THE GANDER—

We get hated and persecuted for our bad qualities—but not as bitterly as for our good ones.

Sometimes it's trustin' a woman too far, making her unfaithful. And sometimes it's not trustin' her at all.

One father can make a better job outa supportin' ten children than ten children can make outa supportin' one father.

What a Relief!

A traveling man put up one night in a cheap little hotel, where the thin partitions of a range of bedrooms, like the stalls of a stable, stopped halfway to the ceiling. And in the stilly watches of the night he lay awake and listened to the finest demonstration of plain and fancy snoring that it had ever been his fate to hear. It was full of sudden and awful variations. Sometimes strangulation seemed imminent; then in the middle of a fortissimo the agony stopped suddenly, and there was silence.

From a near-by room he heard a voice exclaim wearily, "Thank goodness! He's dead."

Mother's Cook Book

And I will trust that he who heeds
The life that hides in mead and wold,
Who hangs yon alder's crimson beads
And stains these mosses green and gold,
Will still, as He hath done, incline
His gracious ear to me and mine:
Grant that we ask aright, from wrong debar,
And, as the earth grows dark, make brighter every star.

SEASONABLE DISHES

CHICKEN is a main dish which is always popular whatever the season. The following is one which will add to your menu:

Cadillac Chicken.

Wipe a chicken dressed for broiling, sprinkle with salt and pepper, place on a broiler over a hot flame or coals for eight minutes. Remove and rub over with the following mixture: Cream four tablespoonfuls of butter and add one teaspoonful of made mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of vinegar and one-half teaspoonful of paprika. Sprinkle with three-fourths cupful of buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Pimento Canapes.

Cut bread into one-fourth-inch slices, shape with a round cutter and saute in butter. Drain canned pimento dry between towels and shape with a round cutter; then saute in butter. Remove to the bread, garnish with a border of finely chopped parsley. Serve hot.

Orange Puffs, Orange Sauce.

Prepare a cottage pudding mixture and bake in buttered gem pans. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff and add one cupful of powdered sugar gradually, beating constantly, then add the grated rind and juice of two oranges and the juice of one lemon.

Fill cream puff shells with ice cream and serve with a chocolate sauce. This is not only a quick dessert but one which is very well liked. The sauce may be maple or caramel if preferred.

SUPERSTITIOUS SUE

SHE HAS READ THAT—

The 31st of October, which is known as Hallowe'en, or All Hallows Eve, is supposed to be the night set apart for the walking abroad of spirits, and it, of all nights of the year, the one when we humans are most able to talk to them and look into the future—dust off the mirrors, girls, as we can all have a look.

Lines and Lines That Slenderize

Color and Fabric Must Be Beautifully Combined, Writer Says.

The old, old rule that lengthening lines gives that smart slim look no longer holds, says Jane Warren, well-known fashion writer in Farm and Fireside. Slenderness in the modern manner requires more than a mere line for its achievement. The lengthening line is far too obvious in its intention, and dissection is about all it has ever accomplished anyhow. Line, color and fabric must be beautifully combined if one really wants to look more slender than she is.

This year fashion offers much aid in slenderizing. In line we have the new spiral effects working from the right shoulder down to the left waistline and then straight down. Sometimes two or three lines are used in this way to get lengthening effects.

The V, U and square necklines are all length giving. So are short skirts, especially those with irregular hems and the combination long and short waistlines.

Close-fitting sleeves, narrow belts, those, too, make for slimness and are decidedly fashionable at the moment.

Never have georgette and crepe de chine and the limp silks been more fashionable than today. Voile is again in the fashion calendar, as are many others of the limp, medium heavy fabrics that tend downward rather than outward in silhouette. For this reason gingham is better than percale, linen better than broadcloth, voile better than batiste and crepe preferable to taffeta.

Navy blue is again decidedly popular, and navy blue is best of all colors for creating the illusion of slenderness. Black is good, but it is not so summery and unless it is skillfully developed it may take on a "mourning-for-you" look that is too matronly to be becoming. Dark gray is another matronly color and dangerous for anyone past thirty-five, unless of course one is past seventy-five, and then it is very flattering.

The grayed pastel shades and lighter tones all are favored colors and are in the height of fashion today. They are so flattering in their softness that we can wear them without any difficulty whatever—mauve or pale green or even rose, if that is a color we like.

Large women should always avoid a color that has a definite color quality, that is, tending toward "purity" in color. No one has yet seen a ghost-like complexion with a full figure. Florid good health usually accompanies pounds. Even if one's size does not make it necessary to choose subdued colors, one's complexion would.

Weigh all the points given and see how closely you can adhere to them in selecting your next new dress. Your own mirror will tell you whether or not you have hidden those extra pounds.

Scarfs in Wide Variety of Color Combination

The fashion army today is wearing no uniform, but one that allows for distinguishing insignia and decoration. The significance of these distinguishing marks consist of scarfs. These are in a wide variety of color combination and of drapings. They may either be knotted about the neck rather closely or allowed to fall down in loose ends behind. Most of them are composed of two bands of crepe de chine, voile or satin. One band will usually match the color of the dress, while the other will be of a contrasting shade.

Flannel Suits

Flannel, in dusty tones and grayish light blues, fashions some of the smart suits. One in powder blue has a plaid taffeta blouse and a matching coat lining.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

With the National League's fifth intersectional series virtually over, the four western contenders now can begin cutting each other's throats, while the New York Giants, wrathful over their recent beatings at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, seek to visit their vengeance on the more or less helpless east.

It's no dead secret that John McGraw hopes to win the pennant just by these means. While the Reds, Pirates, Cardinals and Cubs are having it out west of the Alleghanies, McGraw hopes to get the Giants into first place, a strategic point from which to view the third and final western invasion of the east, beginning September 14.

In theory this is a good scheme. But John didn't start out very well yesterday. The Giants were outgamed by the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3, M'sieu Del Bissonette picking the tenth inning as the spot for his 20th homer of the season.

Before Young Carl Hubbell, in a moment of weakness, grooved the ball for M'sieu Del, the Giants did the best they could to present the game to the Robins in the regulation innings. Andy Cohen and Travis Jackson threw in errors at moments extremely inopportune for Mr. Hubbell, who saw a well-pitched seven-hit game get away from him. Of course, Hubbell committed the crowning mistake of the game. He realized it when he saw Bissonette's drive disappear over the right field fence at Ebbetts Field. It was the Giants' fourth straight reverse and their sixth in seven starts.

The defeat was all the more costly for McGraw in that the St. Louis Cardinals, themselves buffeted around in recent weeks, again trimmed the helpless Phillies, 6 to 1, and lengthened their league lead to three and a half games over the Giants and the Chicago Cubs.

With Jim Bottomley back in the lineup, the Cards agve Wee Willie Sherdel excellent support and battered three Phil pitchers for ten hits. Sherdel chalked up his 16th victory of the year.

The Cubs, defeating the Boston Braves 6 to 3, for the fourth straight time, moved to within five percentage points of the Giants. The Cubs have won four more games than the Giants, but they've also lost four more. The Giants owe their percentage advantage to the fact that they've player fewer and lost fewer games than the Cubs. With Kiki Cuyler and Woody English leading the offense, the Cubs battered Kent Greenfield for 13 hits while Hal Carlson was holding the Braves to five.

Finding their hold on fourth place insecure, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, and thus put two full games between themselves and the 1927 pennant winners. Red Lucas shut out the Pirates until the ninth, when they scored three runs and had the tying run on first base. Lucas got Barteil on strikes for the final out. Brame was touched for 14 hits, the Reds counting their runs one at a time—in the fourth, fifth, sixth and eighth innings.

Braxton was the whole show as Washington defeated Cleveland 5 to 1, in the only American League engagement of the day. The senators' left hander, one of the few consistent pitchers Bucky Harris has right now, allowed only five hits and struck out seven men.

Unprecedented Weather.

According to a Greene county man, particularly interested in checking up on the weather, the present summer is unprecedented for showery, cloudy and humid weather. An old Catskillian said there was not a day this summer when the water did not run over Rushmore dam on the Catskill creek, a condition which he never remembers witnessing previous to this summer.

Industrial League Game Tonight

If old Jupe Pluvius will permit an Industrial League game will be staged at the Athletic Field this evening between the U. & D.-Schillings and the West Shore. The combined team can call on Walt Black or Dick Williams for mound duty with Smedes behind the plate. The West Shore can pick from Carpenter, Bush and Lefty Williams. Rider will do the receiving. Game called at 6:00 o'clock sharp.

INJURY MAY LAY UP LAZZERI FOR SEASON

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—Tony Lazzeri, hard-hitting second baseman of the champion Yankees, may play no more baseball this season.

Tony suffered a muscle injury in his shoulder during the Yankees' last disastrous invasion of the west and has been in only a few games since. Every time he plays the injury is aggravated and it begins to look like Miller Huggins will have to depend upon Leo Durocher at second base for the balance of the season.

With the Philadelphia Athletics only three games behind, Lazzeri's absence from the lineup of the champions is serious. Not only is Tony's hitting and field skill missed but Mark Koenig, at shortstop, teams better with Lazzeri than with any other second baseman Huggins can use.

Huggins is authority for the statement that Lazzeri may not play again this year.

Woodcliff Park Bouts All Set

Poughkeepsie Show Expected To Be Best of Season—Konchina To Meet Real Opponent in Babe McCorgary—Johnny Carpino To Battle Sailor Snitka.

Eddie Kelly and Leo Smith of this city have all details arranged for the 34-round boxing show to be put on at Woodcliff Park, Poughkeepsie, Thursday night, August 30. Fans of the fistic sport look upon the card from the viewpoint that it will be the best staged in the spacious stadium this season.

Among the admirers of the Kingston matchmakers' tastes are Bill Singer of the Singer Service Station on the Strand, who regularly acts as judge at the fights in the local armory; Captain E. C. Lawson, of Battery B, 156th Field Artillery, who has full charge of staging the soldier bouts in Kingston and numerous fans, that never miss a fistic program.

The main 10-round go between Frankie "Kayo" Konchina and Babe McCorgary, outstanding New York pugilist, especially is attracting much attention. This mixup is expected to be a very fast affair in which Konchina will get his first big chance to exhibit his wares against a man who has met some of the outstanding boxers in the game. The kayo artist will have to be in tip-top form to stay with McCorgary, who has met George Cortney, Phil Kaplan, Jack McVey and Charlie Arthurs, and such scrappers.

Jack "Red" Mosher of Newburgh, who recently scored a decisive win over Joe "Soldier" Vosdick of this city, will battle Billy LaDuke of Connecticut in the eight-round semi-final. LaDuke trimmed the hard punching Al Ferone of Beacon at the last Woodcliff Park show and is planning to take Mosher over.

The rest of the card is as follows: Johnny Carpino of Kingston vs. Sailor Snitka of New York, six rounds; Tony Abrueri of New York vs. Frankie Minerva, six rounds; Jerry Sampere, Poughkeepsie, vs. D. Chiles of Tampa, Fla., four rounds.

Helen Wills May Win Two Titles

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—Thanks to a tennis double-header and improved weather conditions, Helen Wills today was well on her way toward two of the three national titles she would like to win this year.

Already in the final round of singles play in the national women's championships, Miss Wills, paired with Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman of Boston, reached the same spot in doubles competition yesterday by eliminating the strong team of Mrs. Alfred M. Chapin and Penelope Anderson, 6-0, 6-2.

Today the Berkeley girl meets her fellow-Californian, Helen Jacobs, of Santa Barbara, for the singles title and then takes the courts with Mrs. Wightman for their match against Mrs. L. A. Harper and Edith Cross of San Francisco, for the doubles championship. Mrs. Harper and Miss Cross reached the final round by scoring in straight sets over Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, of Santa Monica, and Miss Jacobs.

From Forest Hills Miss Wills intends to go to Brookline, Mass., where she will seek the national mixed doubles championship. Her partner there will be John B. Hawkes, of Australia.

Although there seems little prospect of defeat for Miss Wills in either of today's matches, the singles final against Miss Jacobs, scheduled for 4 o'clock, holds promise of a close struggle if the younger Californian can keep up the pace she set Saturday in her semi-final round victory over Mrs. Molly Bjurstedt Mallory.

Miss Jacobs flashed a game that will require the best the champion can give to overcome it. She showed that she can meet the masculine power of Berkeley Helen's driving by outplaying the powerful Mrs. Mallory. Her forehand drives were as long and as hard as Molla's. With this Miss Jacobs combined brilliant volleying and surprising ability to work her way up to the fore court in the face of Mrs. Mallory's famous speed.

In the doubles, Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman are favorites but they may meet stern opposition from the great team-work developed by Mrs. Harper and Miss Cross.

Rain Hampered Local Teams

The Pan-Ams vs. Blue Sox baseball game, which was to have been played for the benefit of the American Legion Drum Corps fund, like other tilts scheduled for Sunday afternoon, was postponed on account of the heavy rain. This game will be played at the Fair Grounds on Sunday afternoon, September 2.

Dave Hawk's Spartons did not go to Ruby Sunday afternoon because of the disagreeable weather but the Radio Boys have a busy schedule for this week. Tuesday the Spartons will oppose the Colonial Trucking Company nine and Friday evening will take on the Brigham A. C. Both games will be played at the Fair Grounds. Boo Corregan and Eddie Baker will likely do the hurling for the Spartons in the games with Emmick behind the bat.

Manager Longendyke of the Spartons would like to book a double header for Labor Day. Teams of this vicinity may get in touch with him by 'phoning 1313, after 6 p. m.
